MYSTERY IN THE LONELY DEATH OF ECCENTRIC 'ROMEO' KEYS

ROMANCES OF ELOPER RECALLED

Harvard Man Who Married Elevator Girl Sowed Wild Oats Late

John Baker "Romeo" Keys, Harvard '77, the college widower who first made his million and then started in the twilight of life to sow his wild oats, died alone in an apartment at No. 56 Cummings road, Brookline.

The mystery that shrouded his life attended this eccentric millionaire in death. Physicians and others refused to discuss it. One said tuberculosis, another, cancer, caused death.

Florence Giradin, the Harvard club elevator girl, with whom Keyes eloped after escaping from the asylum in which his relatives had placed him, and from whom he was induced to secure a divorce, was not notified of his death. She had been given a settlement of $10,000.

Preparations were made to take the body to Cincinnati for burial today.

HAD HARVARD DEGREE.

John Baker Keys, the Romeo of after years, was born in Cincinnati in 1857. He didn't know who his ancestors were and he didn't care. "The commonest people" were his forbears, he said, and his first ancestor to land in this country was "John the Baker. He didn't have a last name so he dropped the "the," added "Keys" and became John Baker Keys.

He came to Harvard and after obtaining his degree returned to Cincinnati and commenced a contracting business. For forty years he worked hard and amassed a fortune. He then started East to sow the wild oats which in youth he had no time for scattering.

With $300,000 at his disposal he put onroutes in New York, Newport, Philadelphia, and finally Boston. He established residence in the Harvard Clubs of both New York and Boston. The country was "wet."

One night he returned to the Harvard Club a little under the weather and beheld Florence Giradin, eighteen-year-old elevator operator, who took the job to release a man for war service.

LOVE'S CRUEL AWAKENING

Keys asked Florenc to marry him between floors. She laughed. Later she gave in. Announcement stunned family. Three weeks later he was arrested in Newburyport for drunkenness and confined in an inebriates' home. It was stated the family objected to his wedding the elevator girl. Back in Cincinnati his relatives, Miss Eva Keys, a maiden sister, and Mrs. Howard B. Hollister, another sister, had a guardian appointed.

Romeo was torn from the arms of his affianced and confined in a sanitarium in Flint, Mich. One day he hopped the last car of a train while his attendant stood watching the tail lights disappear. He alighted at Cincinnati and crossed the toll bridge to Covington, Ky. Three cents was his capital, but he was free. He eluded two deputy sheriffs, borrowed money from a cafe proprietor and caught a train for Washington, D. C.

On the train two men tried to kidnap him, but he beat them off and reached the capital. He wanted to borrow some money from a friend, but the friend had gone to New York. An obliging messenger boy gave him a lift on the rear seat of his motor cycle and he made New York, met a friend and replenished his exchequer.

RICH COUPLE VICTIMS IN POISON MYSTERY

MR. AND MRS. FREMONT M. JACKSON

JUDGE CHARGES PERJURY

All evidence was concluded at 12:45 o'clock this afternoon.

Attorney Feeney's address was a scathing arraignment of Mrs. Hartford, characterizing her as the "wrecker of two homes—her own and Mr. Trott's."

"This woman has proved herself absolutely unfit to bring up a child," he declared. "She has proved herself guilty of misconduct beyond all shadow of a doubt. Her relations with Mr. Trott was town gossip.

"We have produced evidence to prove that she was in New York with the man who guaranteed her bills in Boston stores, yet she sits here and grins and denies it. She may grin, but the time has now come when she must suffer for her guilt.

2 HOMES WRECKED.

"She stands here the wrecker of two homes. I cannot understand how she can grin in the face of these two tragedies. She doesn't realize what she has done—she doesn't appreciate the sorrow of it all.

"Her friendship with Mr. Trott was criminal. How can this court give her a certificate of good character? The witnesses she promised to bring here to prove that she made hats and did other things to support herself—where are they? They did not come.

"Even her own mother failed to appear. Where is she? You will remember it, her own mother, 'a dealer in automobiles,' whom Mrs. Hartford says owned the car we claim was given to her by Mr. Trott.

"We have proved that Mrs. Hartford made trips to New York without her husband's knowledge and that Mr. Trott guaranteed her bills in Boston to the amount of $250 a month. Can the court regard a woman of this sort as the proper person to bring up a child?

FATHER PLEADS FOR CHILD.

"She says she was beaten by a dog leash—but she never complained to the police. She simply basked in the publicity of it all."

At the close of his own testimony Mr. Hartford made a plea for the custody of the daughter, Jacqueline, whom he said he would place in his mother's home.

POISON PUT IN JACKSONS' FOOD

untouched so far as has been discovered, although the bodies, fully clothed, were found in the bathroom only a short distance from the instrument.

The theory of suicide was discounted today by friends of the couple. Edward S. Clinch, attorney for Jackson for twenty-five years, declared it was impossible for Jackson to have committed suicide. His financial affairs were in excellent shape, Clinch said, and the couple were ideally happy.

A chemical analysis of the contents of the stomachs will be made today by experts.

NEAREST HEIRS.

The closest surviving relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson were questioned today by the King's County authorities. They were Winfield P. Warren of Lawrence, Mass., a son of Mrs. Jackson by a former marriage, and Howard D. Brainerd of South Orange, N. J., a nephew of Jackson.

The bodies of the aged couple were found early Wednesday morning in the bathroom of their apartment in the fashionable Hotel Margaret, on Brooklyn Heights, where they had lived since their customary Winter sojourn in Florida.

Whether the case is to become as famous in New York's criminal annals as the murder of Mrs. Katherine Adams, boarding house keeper, by Roland B. Molineux, depends on the report of the city chemist, who will analyze poisons found in the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson.

As far as can be learned Warren is the only heir to his mother's estate, which in itself, is said to be large, and Mr. Brainard is next to kin of Mr. Jackson, who had no children.

Preliminary medical examination establishes the fact that the couple died as a result of a poison administered "in a manner unknown."

DOCTORS SCENT MURDER.

The autopsy was performed by Dr. Charles Wuest, Kings County medical examiner, assisted by Dr. Carl Boetteger, chief surgeon at the Kings County Hospital. Present also was Dr. Ernest N. Vaughan, medical assistant of District Attorney Ruston of Kings County.

Dr. Wuest asserted after the examination:

"I found that death was due in both cases to some poison, the character of which can only be determined by analysis. This analysis will be made by Dr. E. A. Gettler, chief chemist of the Standard Laboratory.

One locomotive and six freight cars of the Boston "Beef Train" were wrecked at the Rocklawn Crossing of the Boston & Albany Railroad, one mile west of Southville, near Framingham, today, as a result of what is believed to be one of the boldest attempts at train robbery in New England in recent years.

The fact that a fast mail train laden with $1,000,000 consigned to Boston banks was nearly an hour late is all that foiled the would-be train robbers, according to railroad investigators.

The bandits tore away a cleat which connects the rails. One end of the rails was thus released and spread and when the heavy beef train struck the rail the train jumped the track.

For about 200 yards the engine and derailed cars bumped along over the ties. Then the engine toppled over on its side and buried itself in the cinders at the brink of a twenty-foot embankment.

The freight cars buckled and piled up behind the engine and hung dangerously over the brink of the embankment.

According to the train schedule the mail train with its $1,000,000 cargo was due just about the time the beef train was wrecked. When word was flashed along the line that the mail train was nearly an hour late the beef train was ordered ahead and was speding for the next siding when it reached the Rocklawn crossing.

It is believed the robbers were waiting at the crossing with an automobile—all ready to pounce down upon the money-laden train when it was hurled over the embankment. When the beef train came in sight instead of the mail train the robbers are thought to have jumped into their machine and sped away.

The three men in the cab of the wrecked locomotive were uninjured.

SUSPECT PLOT ON HARDING TRIP

Cincinnati, O., April 28.—Captain George W. Dameron of the United States Inspection Service is investigating a report that the collapse of the third deck of the Island Queen while the steamer was carrying 2,500 passengers to the Grant centennial celebration was due to the supports of the deck being tampered with.

Captain Dameron refused to comment on the fact that at the eleventh hour plans had been changed so that President Harding, who was scheduled to make the trip to Point Pleasant aboard the Island Queen, went up the river on the Cayuga, a government boat. The cabin which had been reserved for the President on the Island Queen was directly under the deck which collapsed.

GETS ONE YEAR FOR BACK BAY ROBBERY

Joseph P. Galagher of Mt. Vernon street, aleged by the police to be one of a gang which has been robbing Back Bay flats, was sentenced to Concord Reformatory today by Judge Fosdick. Gallagher was convicted of breaking into the flat of William Gilbert on Batavia street and stealing $1,200 worth of furs. James J. McDonald, convicted along with Gallagher, will be centenced Tuesday.

7 WOMEN ARRESTED IN RIOTING AT MINE

Uniontown, Pa., April 28.—Seven State policemen arrested seven women today during a demonstration at Mine No. 2 of the Colliery Hill Coal and Coke Company. The women were charged with disorderly conduct.

Three women arrested yesterday at another mine in the county during a similar demonstration were fined $10 and costs each by an alderman here.

HOWAT, MINERS' HEAD, STARTS JAIL TERM

Pittsburg, Kan., April 28.—Alexander Howat, deposed president of the Kansas Miners' Union, today began a one-year sentence in the Crawford County Jail at Girard. The sentence grew out of the calling of a strike in alleged contempt of court. August Dorchy, deposed vice-president, also was taken into custody last night.

SOUTH END LODGER IS KILLED BY GAS

With gas escaping from a wall bracket, Edward Carney, forty-five years old, lodger at No. 11A Hanson street, South End, was found unconscious on his bed. Police, notified by Elizabeth Briton, landlady, summoned a doctor, who pronounced the man dead. Death is believed to have been accidental.

HERBERT B. NEWTON, JR., IS SUED BY WIFE

Mrs. Charlotte S. Newton of No. 2 Reservoir Court, Brookline, has brought suit for divorce from Herbert B. Newton, Jr., prominent in business and society. She charges neglect to provide. Mrs. Newton seeks alimony and custody of two minor children, the younger a boy of three months. The Newtons were married in November, 1918.

LEHRMANN IS MARRIED TO SHOW GIRL

Los Angeles, April 28.—Henry M. Lehrmann, motion picture director, who as fiance of the late Virginia Rappe came into prominence during the "Fatty" Arbuckle trials, announced his marriage today to Jocelyn Leigh, former Follies beauty.

The bride came here from New York.

Following Arbuckle's arrest as the cause of Miss Rappe's death, interviews came from the movie director in which he cried: "I'll have to kill 'Fatty,'" and "If he's ever freed he'll have to settle with me."

Miss Rappe's last words in the sanitarium where she was taken following the famous San Francisco hotel party in Arbuckle's suit were reported to have been, "Don't tell Henry."

Lehrmann sent $1,000 worth of tiger lilies to the funeral.

Following his order for them to a Los Angeles florist he was reported to have said: "But not a nickel for a fur coat for a New York 'cutie'" alleged to have been bought in his name.

Who the "cutie" was, was not revealed.

Stamped in silver on Virginia Rappe's casket was Lehrmann's last message to the girl he was reported to have been about to marry when death intervened: "To my brave sweetheart from Henry."

Lehrmann exhibited platinum cuff links at the time of the girl's death stamped, "To Henry, my first and last sacred love, Virginia."

LYNN SHOE MAN CONVICTED OF FRAUD

Simon Schofield, shoe jobber of Broad street, Lynn, was convicted of concealing assets amounting to $9,000 and with having sworn falsely regarding them in an effort to defraud his creditors, at the conclusion of his trial before Judge Morton in the Federal Court today. Sentence will be pronounced Wednesday.

In his defence Schofield claimed that in March, 1920, he had been attacked in his office, bound to a chair and gagged, while four men robbed his safe of 25,000.

E. S. Abbott, assistant United States attorney, who had charge of the case for the prosecution, told the jury: "Schofield found himself with more money than he had ever had in his life before at one time, and he hit upon this robbery tale as a scheme to withhold the money from his creditors."

BOSTON GIRL IN BOY'S CLOTHES IN COURT

Charlotte Vincent, eighteen years old, arrested while dressed in boy's clothes, appeared in East Boston Court today. She was accused of intoxication.

The girl pleaded guilty to drunkenness and was sentenced to Sherborn for an indefinite period.

She was smoking a cigarette and talking loudly when arrested, according to Patrolman Marinelli.

There were three boys of her own age with Miss Vincent when Marinelli approached her and asked her not to talk and laugh so loudly.

Miss Vincent gave her address as No. 221 Everett street, East Boston.

LOVE NOTES INTRODUCED IN MORRILL CASE

rill made to New York when she received the bar pin.

It read: "If you're starting the same game in New York, I'm a poor judge."

Q.—You spoke of the critical tone of Mr. Carter's correspondence. Wasn't most of it in reference to attentions you received from other men? A.—No, it was not.

Q.—But a part of his criticism referred to attentions from other men? A.—Only in this particular instance of the bar pin.

Q.—Hadn't Mr. Carter criticised you about events in your past life? A.—Not up to that time.

Q.—What was the nature of this criticism? A.—My social affairs.

Q.—Early in the Spring of 1919, in your discussion with Dr. Parker, you understood his queries were to learn your true condition so that he might help you? A.—Yes.

"UNJUST SUSPICION."

Q.—Up to 1918 you knew your husband was jealous of the attentions you were receiving from Mr. Carter? A.—I didn't think it was jealousy. I thought it was unjust suspicion.

Q.—You had seen more, rather than less, of Douglas Carter, in July of 1918, although he had been ordered from your home by your husband, and knowing your husband was unduly suspicious of Carter? A.—I think so.

Q.—And didn't you give a thought to your husband's attitude and feeling in that matter? A.—I didn't think of it in that way.

Q.—Did you realize during your illness that your relations with Douglas Carter were the cause of the strained relations between you and your husband? A.—I think so.

Q.—When you sent the telgram to San Francisco, breaking up your relations with Mr. Carter, you did so on the advice of Dr. Parker? A.—I don't remember, at least, Dr. Parker did not dwell on it at any length.

Mrs. Morrill admitted that after sending the telegram to Mr. Carter, definitely breaking with him, her physical condition showed improvement.

Two letters were offered by Attorney Knowlton, one dated September 5, 1919, from Mr. Morrill to Mrs. Morrill; the other her answer, dated Sept. 18, 1919.

Parts of the first letter follow:

For the past four years you have told me we were not suited for one another. You have talked divorce for several years. You have told me that you did not love me, and would have, as long as you lived with me, "a man on the side." You are responsible for the position that you have placed us both in.

Mrs. Morrill was reading a draft of the copy of the original letter. She called her husband's lawyer's attention to the fact something had been left off. The latter was put in for the purpose of trying to have Mrs. Morrill refresh her memory as to what she did with the original letter. She thought she had destroyed it.

MRS. MORRILL'S LETTERS.

Mrs. Morrill's reply was read. In substance she said:

It is too bad both of us were not intelligent and able to decide for ourselves, but this is because we allow ourselves to permit others to do things for us. I don't want to think of the past. I know that you think I have done things that the maids told you I did. The worst thing that I did was to go with Douglas Carter and that I did openly.

With best wishes from
FLORENCE

Q.—Going back to the Summer of 1918, you spoke of a trip to Providence with Mr. Carter? A.—Yes.

Q.—And you said that on your return you stopped at Mr. Carter's apartment to pick up his bag? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you go in? A.—No.

Another letter introduced, was dated June 22, 1919, sent by Mrs. Morrill to her husband, pleading with him to take her back.

FAILS TO REMEMBER.

Mrs. Morrill's mind was a blank on many of the incidents alleged to have happened the night of July 13, 1918, and the following day, at her Brookline apartments. That was the occasion when Douglas S. Carter, it has been testified, was a guest.

Nineteen-year-old Margaret Ann Dickson, a former employe in the Morrill home, had testified she saw Mr. Carter and Mrs. Morrill in bed on Sunday morning.

Attorney Knowlton, in his cross examination of Mrs. Morrill, asked:

Q.—With a rather ugly sounding intimation mad in regard to your relations with Mr. Carter, you say you are now unable to recall one single instance of inviting Mr. Carter to spend that night at your house, when you knew your husband was away? A.—I don't recall it.

She said she did not recall Mr. Carter's going to bed. She testified she got him a pair of pajamas.

Mrs. Morrill in direct testimony said she awakened Mr. Carter by "touching him lightly." Under cross-examination she said she had on a flesh-colored silk lace negligee and nightgown.

Q.—Whatever transpired in that room, you now have no recollection of? A.—No, I have not.

Speaking of a visit of Mr. Carter to her home, Mrs. Morrill said possibly they might have drunk highballs. Asked if it wasn't cocktails, she said, "No, we wouldn't drink cocktails in the afternoon."

TALKS WITH DOCTOR.

She said she spent one summer at Pinehurst and met Darius Goff there. Mrs. Morrill denied she had talked with Dr. Waterman about her affection for Mr. Goff, but admitted she discussed that with the doctor about Mr. Carter. Mrs. Morrill said this talk was in relation to the social activity of herself and Carter.

The doctor thought the strain of this social activity was to great on her. Witness denied she told the doctor she was becoming frightened over the effect of her affection for Mr. Carter was having.

Mrs. Morrill said she told Dr. Waterman of her affection for Mr. Carpenter. This, she testified, was while she was ill. She denied she told him she had taken her mind off Mr. Goff and purposedly centred it on Carpenter.

INVESTIGATORS MYSTIFIED BY GIRL'S DEATH

Young Woman Whose Body Is Found in Parsonage May Have Been Slain

Danville, Ill., April 28.—No evidence of violence was found on the body of Miss Gertrude Hanna, according to Dr. F. A. Baumgart, after an autopsy. The state of preservation, Dr. Baumgart stated, indicated that she had been dead only a short time.

By International News Service

Hopeston, Ill., April 28.—Discovery of the body of a Miss Gertrude Hanna, twenty-five years old, lying on a narrow ledge in the basement of the vacant United Presbyterian parsonage, had shaken this town to its foundations today and provided the authorities with a mystery difficult of solution. Whether Miss Hanna was murdered or ended her own life has not been determined. Whether she met her death in the basement of the parsonage or was brought there after being slain was another puzzling angle.

The length of time she has been dead, whether she died by poison or through some other means and the reason for her slaying or suicide are other phases that future developments must answer.

But topping all of these puzzling questions came the revelation that the girl, had she lived, would have become a mother.

FOUND BY CARPENTER.

Miss Hanna's body was found by a carpenter who was engaged in preparing the parsonage for the occupancy of a new pastor. Workmen had been engaged in the upper part of the house several days but not until yesterday did any of them have occasion to go to the basement. J. C. Nickerson, in charge of the carpenters, went to the basement and noticed what appeared to be a bundle of clothing lying on a ledge. Investigation proved it to be the body of Miss Hanna.

An autopsy revealed the girl's condition.

No marks of violence were found upon the body. Impressions in the flesh of the wrists indicated that her hands might have been bound for some time with a leash of some description, but otherwise the body was unmarked. Inquest into the case has been postponed pending an examination by expert chemists of the stomach and other organs of the girl. This examination will reveal whether death resulted from poisoning. Miss Hanna had been missing from her home for four weeks.

She had left home late one evening and had not returned. Search for her had been unavailing. The body when found was clothed in the garments the girl wore when she left home.

The parsonage where the body was found had been vacant for three months, the Rev. J. T. Meloy, former pastor of the church, having moved to Evanston, Ill. It was located about two blocks from the home of Miss Hanna's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hanna.

WAS IN SANITARIUM.

Mr. and Mrs. Hanna declared they knew of no reason why their daughter should end her life. Several years ago the girl became afflicted with a mental disorder and for a time was confined in a sanitarium. She later was discharged as cured.

For a time after that she worked in Chicago, but was forced to return to her home when her health again failed. Although regarded as abnormal mentally, the girl had no enemies here so far as has been learned, nor has she been friendly or intimate with any men to the knowledge of her relatives or friends.

UP FOR ROBBING CHURCH RECTORY

Providence, April 28.—Raymond J. Riley, son of a Providence politician, went on trial today on charges of robbery of the rectory of the Church of the Sacred Heart, East Providence, assault with intent to kill Patrolman Walter S. Haskins of the East Providence force and with sending threatening letters to the Rev. John H. McKenna, pastor of the church.

Superintendent of Police Peter F. Gilmartin, Chief Inspector John T. Maguire and Inspector James E. McElroy of Providence testified that Riley, while in their office after his arrest, had made a signed confession in which he admitted being the author of the threatening letters to Father McKenna.

He also told them he was responsible for the break in the rectory and for the shooting of Patrolman Haskins.

The latter was in the hospital several weeks.

USE GAS MASKS AT $25,000 HOLYOKE FIRE

Holyoke, April 28.—Damage estimated at $25,000 was done by fire today in the building of Collins & Murray, Inc., furniture dealers in High street. Firemen used gas masks while working in the dense smoke. The blaze originated in the basement, but heavy smoke and water damage was done in the upper stories.

IDENTIFY WOMAN WHO FORGOT HER NAME

Springfield, April 28.—The mystery surrounding a well-dressed, attractive young woman suffering from a lapse of memory at the Mercy Hospital here was lifted today when she was identified as Mrs. Beatrice Lapierre, twenty-two years old, of West Warren.

Identification was established by a Springfield woman who said Mrs. Lapierre had previously suffered similar losses of memory.

When addressed by her own name by nurses, however, Mrs. Lapierre failed to display any signs of understanding.

The doctors are satisfied she will recover.

Mrs. Lapierre walked into the police station yesterday afternoon and said her mind was a blank. She said she was standing on Main street when she lost her memory.

She was unable to tell her name, where she came from or what errand had brought her to the city. She could only remember she had been in a motion picture house just before her mind became clouded.

Doctors said her feet were swollen and she had apparently been walking many miles.

APREMONT DAY IS CELEBRATED AT WORCESTER

Worcester, April 28.—Veterans of the 104th U. S. Infantry, supported by thousands of other veterans of the World War from Worcester and surrounding towns, celebrated here today the fourth anniversary of Apremont day.

Four years ago today the colors of the 104th were decorated for valiant service on the plains of Bourg, France, by General Passaga of the French army—the first regimental colors to be so honored in the war.

About 1,500 survivors met to celebrate the event. Worcester gave them cordial welcome as they paraded past business blocks decorated with national colors. A half-holiday during the afternoon gave thousands an opportunity to turn out to see the old soldiers and to cheer them. Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, commander of the 26th Division in France; Governor Channing H. Cox and Brigadier-Generals Charles H. Cole and William C. Hayes came to join in the celebration.

A call to the Massachusetts spirit which struck for liberty against the British, which abolished slavery and which repulsed the Germans at Bois Brule was made by Governor Cox. After recalling that the 104th was the first American regiment to be decorated by a foreign government, Governor Cox said:

"The men from Massachusetts had shown the spirit of those sturdy farmers who stood fast at Lexington and Concord in April, 1775, and the same spirit that those Massachusetts men showed at Baltimore in April, 1861.

"Such deeds have made it possible for us to glory that those of our own generation kept the faith with the fathers, that their blood had not run thin but was filled with strong, rich red American corpuscles."

At City Hall a reproduction of the 104th memorial bronze tablet at Westfield was presented to Worcester by President James Osborne of the Worcester branch of the 104th Regiment Association and Mayor Peter F. Sullivan accepted. The program also included addresses by General Edwards and General Cole, an invocation by Rev. Frederick H. Danker, brother of Rev. Walton S. Danker, who was killed in France while serving as a chaplain of the regiment, and singing by a chorus of 300 school children.

SOLDIER ADMITS SLAYING SERGEANT AT CAMP DIX

Mount Holly, N. J., April 28.—Grover Landis Duncan of Windrock, Tenn., a soldier of Camp Dix, has confessed that he killed Michael Gregor of St. Louis, a supply sergeant at the camp, on September 9, County Detective Ellis H. Parker announced today. Parker said Duncan claimed it was in self-defence. Gregor's body was discovered by hunters in the woods.

FOREST FIRE BURNING ON FIVE-MILE FRONT

Lakewood, N. J., April 28.—Moving forward on a five-mile front at a diminished rate due to a lightening of the wind, the devastating forest fire which was fought through the night by hundreds of men is today in the vicinity of Laurelton Park, seven and one-half miles southeast of this city.

40 TO 60 YEARS FOR NEW YORK ROBBERS

New York, April 28.—Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions today imposed sentences of forty to sixty years each on Eugene Diaset and Moise Bagnoli, two of a band who broke into the Washington square house of Albert R. Shattuck on April 2, locked the retired banker, his wife and eight servants in a wine vault, and escaped with $70,000 in jewels.

Mme. Berat Prefers Begging to Singing in German

New York, April 28.—A determination to beg a living on the streets of Paris rather than sing in German led Madame Louise Berat, contralto, to leave the Metropolitan Opera Company, she declared, as she sailed for her native France on the Rochambeau.

"I am through with America forever," she said. "I spent three years on the battlefields of France during the war, and what I saw there would forbid me ever singing in the language of the boche."

She added that "the influence in the Metropolitan Opera is German."

SENTENCE BOY SLAYER OF LADY WHITE TO DEATH

London, April 28. (By the Associated Press.)—Henry Jacobi, a nineteen-year-old hotel pantry boy, was found guilty today of the murder of Lady Alice White, widow of Sir Edward White, former chairman of the London County Council, on March 14. He was sentenced to death.

SLAYER OF TWO TO BE HANGED ON JULY 15

Houlton, Me., April 28.—Bennie Swim, slayer of Olive Swim Trenholm and Harvey Trenholm, her husband, was sentenced today by Chief Justice McKeown to be hanged in Woodstock July 15. Swim's father was in court when sentence was passed. He broke down and wept.

KEY IN DEATH OF BREWSTER IS HELD BY GIRL

By BERT FORD.

The Massachusetts police hope, with the aid of a young woman, to dispel the mystery which for seven days has clouded the murder of Ralph W. Brewster, railroad ticket agent at Winchester.

State Detective Fred J. Kirlin and John A. Stokes located a young man in Pittsfield on Wednesday who furnished valuable information.

Both detectives returned to Cambridge Wednesday night and conferred on Thursday with District Attorney Saltonstall. It was understood today in Cambridge and Winchester that the newly discovered evidence involves a girl who can shed much light on Brewster's secrets and possibly furnish a motive for his killing.

William Carey, pin boy at Edward McKenzie's bowling alley, has been in Pittsfield for two days trying to identify among its inhabitants the young man with a gray cloth sport hat who bowled there on the night of the murder.

The police are now skeptical about the bowling alley clew.

FEAR NEW FLOODS ALONG THE MISSISSIPPI RIVER

New Orleans, April 28.—With two great sections of Louisiana farm land already inundated, engineers today were concentrating their attention on other points in the lower and middle reaches of the river where the torrent is threatening to break through. The levee near Arkansas City, Ark., and at Plaquemina, La., were the two points where trouble was most feared. Flood waters escaping at Poydras, twelve miles below New Orleans, today had flooded more than 75,000 acres of sugar and trucking lands.

SUFFERERS from chronic indigestion will find quick relief from a few doses of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It gives you artificially the pepsin nature may have deprived you of and the lack of which causes dyspepsia. You will find it much more effective than chewing tablets and flavored candies.

DR. CALDWELL'S
SYRUP PEPSIN
THE FAMILY LAXATIVE

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin contains ingredients effective in dyspepsia and constipation. It is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin. The formula is on the package. It has been successfully used for 30 years. Try it! One bottle will prove its worth.

HALF-OUNCE BOTTLE FREE

Few escape constipation, so even if you do not require a laxative at this moment let me send you a Half-Ounce Trial Bottle of my Syrup Pepsin FREE OF CHARGE so that you will have it handy when needed. Cream Filled Sandwiches

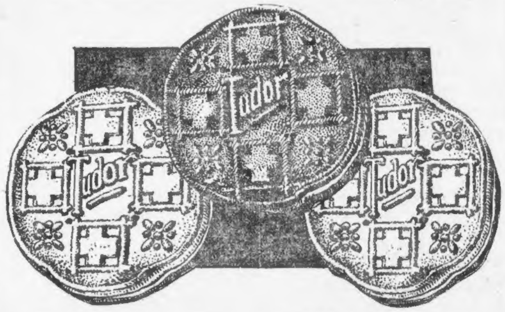
40c Value for 29c

Never before have the highest-grade, cream-filled, sweet sandwiches sold for a price as low as this.



Fine with Strawberries, Cold Drinks, Desserts

One of the most remarkable biscuit values ever offered—five assorted kinds—filled biscuits every one—all of the shapes and sizes illustrated—but each different in some important particular from another—

Two are butter biscuits—one filled with chocolate fudge, the other with vanilla cream. Two are chocolate biscuits—one cream filled with vanilla, the other with chocolate fudge. And the fifth member of this exquisite sandwich family is a combination butter and chocolate biscuit, but its filling is of fruit flavor.

New—fresh from the ovens of KRACKERLAND daily—try this wonderful assortment of five mixed kinds at our special sale price of 29c a pound.

OSTONIANS ARRIVE ON SAMARIA

Hvy Gale Keeps Liner With 81 Passengers at Quarantine Four Hours

e debut in Boston today of the new Cunard liner Samaria, making her maiden trip from Liverpool, was stormy.

heavy gale held the vessel with 48 passengers aboard at quarantine for four hours.

Among the saloon passengers were many from Boston and nearby communities, including Mr. and Mrs. C. Mifflin Frothingham of Boston and Wayland, Miss Ruth Perry of Brookline, Mr. and Mrs. Everett L. Johnson of Malden, Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Stuart of Newton, and Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Bowdith of Framingham Centre.

Miss Edith F. M. Pennington of Liverpool, a bride-elect, was a saloon passenger. She is to marry Charles H. Pedersen, New York representative of a British marine insurance company. During the war Miss Pennington took Pedersen's desk in the insurance concern and conducted it so well that she won him several promotions. When he came back from the war she insisted that he have his job back, with the trimmings she had attached to it during the war, while she humbly retired to a subordinate position. Her sacrifice was the beginning of a romance which will culminate in New York next week in marriage.

W. S. Brooks, bishop of the African Methodist Church at Sierra Leone, West Africa, came on the ship to raise funds for Liberian schools.

Willie Stott, who was born in Dorchester eight years ago, came in the second cabin of the ship. His mother took Willie to Scotland for a visit when he was an infant, and when the war broke out she returned to Dorchester, leaving the child with her sister. Willie appeared in kilts and a bonnet, and insist that he "wilina waur breeches fur nae mon."

KID WEDGE AND HIS WIFE ARE AT ODDS

Cambridge friends of Frederick R. "Kid" Wedge stated that the former pugilist had left Harvard University and returned to Arizona because of a letter he had received from his wife, Mrs. Prudence Wedge.

Ten days ago Wedge entered the Cambridge Relief Hospital. During the war he had suffered from tuberculosis, and he feared he was about to have a recurrence of the malady.

For the first eight days of his stay he was cheerful and contented. Physicians told him the disease would not, in all probability, cause him to leave school.

NEW INTEREST IN HER LIFE.

Then, two days ago, he received a letter from Mrs. Wedge, who is living in Tucson, Ariz. Friends to whom he showed the letter say it suggested a legal separation.

The man who had battled his way up from the backwoods of Wisconsin to the Graduate School of Education at Harvard, wrote a pathetic letter to his ten-year-old son, who is with Mrs. Wedge. Then he got up, packed and told his friends:

"If I ever do return, I'm going to bring my wife and son with me."

According to those to whom Wedge showed the letter from his wife, Mrs. Wedge informed her husband that "something new, beautiful and compelling had come into her life."

IS "ALL BROKEN UP."

His wife was the one who had taken him when, to use his own words, he was "a low-down roughneck," and had caused him to work his way through preliminary school, high school and college.

Wedge was described as "all broken up" over the news. His repeated comment. "I can't understand it."

He was given an honorable release by the Harvard authorities, and told that he might re-enroll at any time he desired.

LEWIS SEEKS TO BREAK DEADLOCK

New York, April 28.—John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, arriving here today, said he had returned to break the deadlock in negotiations toward a settlement of the anthracite coal strike.

To Meet Governor Cox

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Meserve will be received by Governor Cox at the State House tomorrow on the occasion of their fifty-third wedding anniversary. They are also observing the fact that for fifty-three years they have lived continuously in the house at No. 285 Columbus avenue.

Former Pugilist Who Quit Harvard to Join Wife

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK WEDGE.

HULTMAN BOARD BILL UP TO COX

Under provisions of the new bill continuing the Commission on Necessaries of Life for another year, submitted to Governor Cox today for approval, the Governor is allowed to change the personnel of the commission at any time he sees fit.

The bill was passed today by the Senate. It had previously passed the House by a vote of 192 to 2.

Interest in the bill was increased by charges by Chairman Eugene C. Hultman that efforts had been made to "get him" because of his relentless campaign against profiteers.

POLAND STARTS INQUIRY IN R. I. SHOOTING

Providence, April 28.—Arthur E. J. Reilly, secretary to Dr. Stefan Grotowski, Polish consul-general at New York, arrived here today to conduct an investigation for the Polish government of the shooting and serious wounding by National Guardsmen on strike duty at Crompton the night of April 17 of Pawl and Jacob Parkiewiecz, brothers and strikers from the Crompton mill.

Coincident with the arrival of Mr. Reilly, it became known that Lieutenant J. Frank Kenney, the cavalry officer in command of the detail of five men, who fired upon the Pankiewiecz brothers, is no longer on duty with the troops in the Pawtuxet Valley.

LOSES COMMAND.

National Guard officers in the district would not explain Lieutenant Kenney's absence beyond saying that he had "returned to civil life."

Louis G. Weisdy of Central Falls, an employe at the Pawtucket plant of the Jenckes Spinning Company, was found unconscious in the street in front of his home today and taken to a hospital, where it was said he has a probable fracture of the skull. According to the police Weisdy was attacked by four men when he left his home to go to work at 5:30.

SHERIFF OUSTS DEPUTIES.

Sheriff Jonathan Andrews of Providence County, answering criticisms made today by Pawtucket labor leaders to Governor San Souci regarding the actions of deputy sheriffs on strike duty in Pawtucket, asserted that he had found some of the deputies were "unfit men" for the work they were doing and had dismissed them.

Others, he said, he had shifted to different work, in the hope that relations between the sheriffs and the strikers would be improved.

"I want my men to do their duty and nothing more," Sheriff Andrews told the Governor at a public hearing on the matter. "If any of them are exceeding their authority and it is brought to my attention, I will see that they are removed."

Labor leaders presented to the Governor a list of what they termed "aggressions" by the deputies.

R. I. Landlords Get Threats of Bombing

Central Falls, R. I., April 28.—Owners of tenement houses occupied by mill operatives who are working have received letters threatening to bomb their property unless they ordered the operatives out, the police announced today. The letters were unsigned.

Louis G. Weisdy, an employe at the Jenckes Spinning Company's mill, was attacked by four men when he left his home for work today.

At the hospital, it was said he was probably suffering from a fractured skull.

WINTHROP BOY JAILED, $1,000 OF LOOT FOUND

When Winthrop police arrested Paul Goldman, sixteen years old, and searched his home at No. 200 Shirley avenue, they found nearly $1,000 worth of silk shirts and other merchandise hidden in various rooms. The loot is believed to have come from the dry goods store of Clara Paine at Jefferson and Putnam street.

HAIRDRESSER GETS $500 VERDICT AGAINST DOCTOR

Because a broken arm which had been given imperfect medical attention prevented her from carrying on her trade of hairdresses as efficiently as formerly, Mrs. Robona J. Elliott of Roxbury was awarded $500 damages by a Superior Court jury in her suit against Dr. Cornelius H. Garland.

BODY OF UNKNOWN FOUND IN CHANNEL

The body of an unidentified man, wearing a cloth hat but no coat, was found in Fort Point Channel today, between the Broadway and Dover street bridges.

The body, which had been in the water only about twenty hours, was secured by William Thomas and George Egan, assistant drawtenders at the Broadway bridge, who put out in a small boat. It was that of a man about 50 years old, with gray mustache and gray hair, wearing black shoes, light stockings and underwear and a khaki shirt.

PROMINENT OFFICIALS AT CONWAY FUNERAL

Prominent city and State officials were present in force at the funeral today of ex-Representative John J. Conway of No. 97 Brown avenue, Roslindale. There was a solemn high mass of requiem at the Church of the Sacred Heart, Rev. John F. Cummings officiating. The bearers were ex-Mayor J. Edward Barry of Cambridge, ex-Congressman Michael Phelan of Lynn, Judge Charles F. Sullivan of Charlestown, Edward F. Coughlin, Leo Dunn and Dr. Hugh McGuire. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery.

HALF-MILLION IN BONDS ARE NOT FOUND

Mystery surrounding the disappearance of $500,000 in Liberty Bonds shipped by the Chase National Bank of New York to a Massachusetts bank was deepened today when a report that the missing bonds had been found was flatly denied by W. P. Hollis, cashier of the New York bank.

"As far as the Chase National Bank knows," stated Mr. Hollis, "the bonds have not been found and there are no new developments in the case."

The report that the bonds had been discovered was given out in this city by postoffice inspectors working on the case. This report was that two packages had been received by the Massachusetts bank, one containing blank papers and the other the bonds.

The package of papers, it was stated, had been sent as a dummy to foil possible robbery.

It was said this dummy package appeared first and gave rise to the report that the bonds had been stolen. Then the package of securities was said to have arrived, exploding the theft story.

Asked regarding the bonds, Frank A. Newell, vice-president of the National Shawmut Bank of Boston, said:

"The National Shawmut Bank of Boston is not interested either directly or indirectly, as agent, in the reported shipment of $500,000 worth of Liberty bonds b the Chase National Bank of New York."

ADMITS MISTAKE.

In the face of the statement given out today by Cashier Hollis, New York postal inspectors admitted a "mistake" had been made in declaring the mystery solved.

The bonds were sent from New York by registered mail. Insurance and surety company agents working with detectives on the case are now satisfied that the bonds were stolen.

They are seeking to establish whether the theft was committed before the bonds left the New York bank or while they were in the mails en route to Massachusetts.

Chase National Bank officials state that investigation has shown that the bonds were properly checked off and accounted for when placed in the mails. They say 30 packages of bonds were shipped out the day the Massachusetts shipment was made and they have receipts for all but one shipment. They are unable to ascertain if this missing receipt is the one that covered the Massachusetts bonds.

NO RECORD.

Postoffice officials say they have no record of a $500,000 bond shipment to Massachusetts on the day in question. They contend that no such package was placed in their hands.

The primary insurance liability of the missing bonds was assumed by Lloyd's of London. The rest of the risk was carried by American firms.

All of these are aiding in the search for the missing sureties.

Vice-President William J. Griffin of the Chase National Bank admits the case is a complete mystery and adds:

"The whole trouble is we don't know just where to start. We are greatly handicapped because the disappearance of the bonds was not reported to us until long after they had vanished."

ALLEGED WOULD-BE PAYROLL BANDITS HELD

Acting on descriptions given them by the Lynn authorities, police of the Back Bay station arrested three men shortly before midnight and held them for the Lynn police today.

Inspector Kane of the Lynn force wired the Boston officers that five men had been seen riding about the General Electric Plant, in Lynn, at an early hour in the morning. Fearing that the men were planning a payroll robbery, the police sought to arrest them, but the men drove away and disappeared. Kane then sent out descriptions of the men.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS

By FRIEDA DAVIS

THE Questions Answered Department of the Photodramatist for April has brought up a number of subjects that seem to be exactly what the majority of amateur scenarists want. Here are a few pertinent questions answered:

Q.—I wish to adapt a current book to the screen. What is necessary in order to do this?

A.—It is necessary to secure the writer's or the publisher's permission. If, however, the book is out of copyright and the author dead, it would be of no avail, for the various studios have their staff writers adapt such books and would not pay an outsider to do it.

Q.—Does an original scenario ever find its way to the producer's desk?

A.—When a scenario is submitted to a studio, it is first carefully read by a staff reader who determines whether or not the material is suited to the company's needs. If it is desirable, the script is then handed to the scenario editor, who usually has full charge of the selection of the material. However, when a producer is to be consulted, the story is presented to him personally after having been recommended by the editor.

That, I may add, hits a number of questions on the head. I have heard countless hopeful writers ask if their stories ever really reach their destination.

"READERS" AND WARS.

Q.—Is it possible to secure a position as a reader on a scenario staff without having had previous motion picture experience?

A.—It is not impossible, but it would be difficult, since readers are required to have a thorough knowledge of photoplay writing and production.

Q.—My story dealing with the reconstruction period during the late war, in a small European kingdom, with slight Bolsheviki tendency, has been severely criticized. Please point out my error.

A.—The public and the producers do not care to consider subjects dealing with the war. After many years of actual bloodshed tragedies the world is looking for happiness. Further, Bolsheviki subjects are censorable.

ADVICE OF EXPERTS.

Q.—What is meant by the premise of a story?

It is the opening statement of the objective of the story. Many times this is declared by a character when it is introduced.

These are subjects that have been, for the most part, ignored in the motion picture answer columns of the newspapers and magazines. They are, too, answered on the authority of the best known scenarists and authors of the motion picture colony in Hollywood.

TO FILM ABROAD.

WHEN William Fox decides to have his adaptation of the A. S. M. Hutchinson novel, "If Winter Comes," "shot" he will send some of his company to England for the exteriors. The interior scenes will all be made in the Fox West coast studios.

This company has made quite a point of sending their players and directors abroad to use the original locale of the story in their productions. It is a step forward when producers actually get the correct thing for their films instead of putting up "practically the same thing" in papier mache.

ANITA STEWART ILL.

Anita Stewart

ANITA STEWART'S vacation plans were completely disrupted when she was taken ill with influenza during her stay in Miami, where she has been spending two or three weeks. Miss Stewart and her husband, Ralph Cameron, have taken a long vacation before starting work on independent productions.

They planned to stay in Miami a few days longer, then to go to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras, and then to leave for New York. Influenza interrupted the tour and they are leaving for the North immediately.

MORE ABOUT ARBUCKLE.

YESTERDAY the news dispatches from the West intimated that "Fatty" Arbuckle would go into the directing end of the motion picture industry. That seems to have given way to another story. Instead, we hear that he has been approached with offers to star in musical comedy.

It is hard to know quite what to believe on the subject, especially since rumor crowds upon rumor. The first tale, however, seems to be more practical, for the chief objection to having him go on with his acting is that he will be in the public eye. If he goes on the stage—there is the same objection. Whereas, if he carries out his plans to direct—and it is said that he has more than a little ability in that line—he is out of it, as far as the fans are concerned and yet he has an opportunity to make good.

ANOTHER OLD FAVORITE.

THEODORE ROBERTS has been replaced in the cast of "To Have and To Hold" by the veteran actor, W. J. Ferguson. The reason for this change is that Mr. Roberts is already booked to appear as Josh Whitcomb in the filming of that old favorite, "The Old Homestead."

Fritzi Ridgeway has been chosen to portray the role of Ricketty Ann, while T. Barnes Hunter will be Happy Jock, and Charles Ogle will have a prominent part in the picture. James Cruze will direct.

VERA GORDON DOES IT

A VAUDEVILLE team in a Denver theater, we hear, received a note from the Old Ladies' Home in that city, requesting two tickets for the show.

"This sure does win the bottomless soup tureen," said one of the actresses. "The joke of it is that stuff about Vera Gordon. The old janes say they would have asked her, only they're afraid she might refuse. How do they get that way askin' us?"

She dropped the note on the floor backstage, where Miss Gordon later noticed it and picked it up. Miss Gordon was appearing in her one-act sketch, "Lullaby." She read it and immediately arranged to have two good seats sent the old ladies.

A few minutes later the vaudeville team heard what she had done. "Can you beat that!" one exclaimed. "Stealin' our glory behind our backs! Can you beat it!"

EDWARDS ASSOCIATION TO HOLD MAY DANCE

The Clarence R. BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON BOSTON SOCIETY

Dance Tonight in Aid of Free Hospital for Women

By BETTY ALDEN

THERE will be much clashing of the social cymbals this evening when Boston's fashionable contingent assembles in the ballroom of the Copley-Plaza for the last important ball of the season—the eagerly anticipated costume dance in aid of the Free Hospital for Women in Brookline.

That tonight's all-important event will result in a very tidy sum is a foregone conclusion, for numbers of smart set folk have been working zealously for its success, to say nothing at all of the social success of the ball, which will be preceded by a number of rather "swagger" dinner parties among the coterie planning to trip the light fantastic later in the evening.

Mrs. George Richmond Fearing, Jr., chairman of the committee in charge, has devoted no end of her time to completing arrangements for the terpsichorean function. Working on the committee with her have been Mrs. F. W. L. Richardson, Mrs. Bayard Thayer and Mrs. Guy Waring.

Among those who have taken boxes on the floor are Mesdames Fearing, Thayer and Richardson of the group in charge, also Mesdames Hobart Ames, F. Lothrop Ames, Louis Bacon, Russell S. Codman, William A. Dupee, Edward D. Brandegee, Arthur W. Blake, Harold J. Coolidge, Arthur E. Davis, Henry Parsons King, Henry Lapham, Robert C. Morse, Franklin Hobbs, Robert Gould Shaw, 2nd, Charles Goddard Weld, Arthur Winslow and Miss Nellie Carter.

Balcony boxes have been secured by Mesdames Charles Francis Adams and George S. West, who will share one, N. Penrose Hallowell, Jr., Oliver S. Ames, Sewell Fessenden, Guy Waring, Charles K. Cumming, Dudley Pickman, Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., Oliver Ames, Edward W. Atkinson, Amos Lawrence Hopkins, Joseph Woods and Galen Stone.

Among those who will be on hand to receive the guests besides the matrons composing the committee are Mrs. Frederick S. Converse, Charles P. Curtis, Theodore Frothingham, N. Penrose Hallowell, Jr., Philip S. Sears, Hugh Scott and Bayard Warren.

Lawrence W. Goran heads the group of ushers, who include Thomas P. Curtis, William DeFord Beal, Charles Boyden, Charles E. Cotting and Gerald Courtney.

MRS. ROBERT A. LOVETT (Adele Q. Brown), who two Winters ago made her home on Larch road, Cambridge, was one of Gotham's smart young women who took part in a rather novel charity entertainment given recently in New York.

The affair, called the East Side Frolic of 1922, was presented by society folk at the Waldorf-Astoria for the benefit of the Stepney Fresh Air Farm and the Women's and Girls' Clubs of the East Side House Settlement.

The entertainment was in the nature of a cabaret, tables being placed around the dance floor, where supper was served. The rather novel feature introduced during the course of the evening was the parading of a group of fashionable young women, each one appearing as an animated advertisement, and featuring some of the New York shops and big national advertisers. In this group, headed by Miss Katherine MacKay, yas young Mrs. Lovett.

Some of Manhattan's most widely-feted buds of the season were enlisted for the occasion.

THE very many Boston friends of Mrs. Clarence Fiske and her family will be interested to learn that Mrs. Fiske and her daughter, Miss Barbara Fiske, sailed early this week on board the White Star liner bound for Mediterranean ports.

It will be recalled that last Winter Mrs. Fiske (Margaret Higginson) resided with her family at No. 114 Brattle street, Cambridge. In the Fall the Fiskes moved to New York, where they now make their home at No. 126 East Thirty-fourth street.

The son of the house, John Fiske, who graduated from Harvard last June, is now taking a graduate course at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is living at Westmorely court in Cambridge. There are two daughters besides Barbara Fiske—Dorothy, who is at Bryn Mawr, and Margaret Fiske.

No. 114 Brattle street is now the domicile of the John H. Storers (Edith Paine), which reminds one that a most important ceremonial is scheduled for June 3, when young Theodore Lyman Storer, son of the John J. Storers, will marry Miss Katherine Ladd Storey. The latter, a member of the 1917-18 Sewing Circle, is the daughter of the Richard C. Storeys of the Fenway.

Mrs. George Richmond, Fearing, Jr., of Beacon street, is the leading spirit of the smart charity costume ball which will attract a fashionable throng to the Copley-Plaza tonight.

Random Notes of Society Folk in Town and Country

MR. AND MRS. ALBERT ROCKWOOD (Lucia Beebe), who are on their wedding journey, have arrived in White Sulphur Springs, West Va. The wedding of the young people last Saturday at Emmanuel Church was one of the important nuptial events of the season. Mrs. Rockwood is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Junius Beebe of Bay State road.

Mr. and Mrs. Basil King of Boston were recently the guests of honor for whom Mr. and Mrs. Larz Anderson entertained at dinner at their home in Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Curtis have concluded their sojourn at Hot Springs and are returning from that resort to Boston.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert W. Sayles, who are of the Boston colony at Hot Springs, recently drove to the Cascades, later taking tea at the Homestead.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lawrence Kent of Commonwealth avenue have arrived in New York from Boston. They are stopping at the Vanderbilt.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Hall of "Meadowside," Dedham, are among the society folk sojourning at the Homestead in Hot Springs, Va.

Mr. and Mrs. James Cummings Barr gave a dinner on Monday evening at their residence on East Sixty-eighth street before the Hope Farm benefit at the Metropolitan at which Pavlowa danced. Mr. and Mrs. Barr, who formerly made their home in Boston, came on to this city from New York last week to be present at the wedding of Eleanor Abbott and Francis B. Lothrop.

55 PER CENT. OF WOMEN WEAR CORSETS

Chicago, April 28.—A save-the-corset symposium of the Chicago Corset Club revealed today that only 55 per cent. of women wear corsets, according to Ross Hey, secretary of the club's ways and means committee.

Mme. Alla Ripley, president of the Fashion Art League of America, said more and more women were giving up corsets. "To tell the truth, I don't know a young girl who wears one," she said.

The club is composed of manufacturers, salesmen and designers of corsets.

WALSH WINS IN FIGHT FOR NAVY FLIERS

By International News Service.

Washington, April 28.—Scores of Naval Reserve aviators, who have formed the "backbone" of the navy's air forces since the war, will be retained in the regular navy by Congressional action, it was learned today.

The reserve birdmen have been facing loss of rank and dismissal from the service because of failures in "routine" examinations. Their plight, discovered by Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, led to a Senate investigation, which it was said will result in action to transfer reserves into the navy's regular service, with their old ranks.

Action by Congress to prevent wholesale dismissals, it was learned, will result from the investigation conducted by a Senate Naval Affairs sub-committee. At the hearings it was discovered the reserve birdmen had failed in examinations based on seamanship, navigation and similar subjects.

Among the reserves are flight and squadron commanders and the leading technical experts of naval aviation. Practically all of them participated in navy bombing raids during the war or on the flight manoeuvres off the Atlantic coast last year. These manoeuvres, it was contended by the reserves, were to blame for their "failures," as the examinations were held shortly after they returned from the bombing tests in which several captured German warships were sunk.

The reserves declared they had not been given sufficient time to prepare for the examinations.

THREE NIFTY WINNERS BY GIRLS

NIFTY life is a pleasure.

Ask folks to mail in nifty NIFTIES and that's just what they do.

Look at today's winners:

"What bells have no tongues?"

"Dumb bells."—Catherine Kelleher of No. 69 Bennett street, Wakefield.

"Can a barefoot man be arrested for carrying liquor?"

"No, because he isn't a bootlegger."—Agnes Nielson of No. 9 Holden place, Woburn.

"What is the bootlegger's favorite song?"

"'Open Your Mouth and Let the Moonshine In.'"—Anna M. Lister of No. 27 Myrtle street, Lowell.

Oh Boy, have you noticed, all from girls.

Imagine that!

Women right up to the minute. Always are. Of course the girls know a bit about moon shine, but we didn't suppose they would come to bat with red hot NIFTIES about MOONSHINE. Moon shine is wooshine, but MOONSHINE, that's something else again.

Well, the girls won a dollar each. Guess that hurts.

Batter up, gentlemen.

Come on now, get on your toes and rush in your NIFTIES.

Remember, old topper, a NIFTY a day drives the blues away, and a winning dollar gets you a seat at a ball game or buys the maid a box of candy. So step on the gas.

TAKE SAFE AS A POLICEMAN RINGS CALL

While a policeman was pulling a duty call in front of Hood's Craemery at Central square, East Boston, and a woman living next door looked on burglars carried away a safe through the rear window of the store.

The woman was frightened and failed to notify the police.

The safe contained $200 and two Liberty Bonds.

Investigation showed that four men were implicated in the break. The burglars forced an entrance into the cellar and broke in a door leading to the store. In order to remove the safe they had to cut away the window and its sash.

To get the asefe to the auto truck waiting on London street, they tore away parts of two fences.

What Your Dreams Mean

Do you remember when you used to wish on a load of wood when you were a child? It was considered lucky to close your eyes and murmur over the dearest desires of your heart: the new doll, or the bicycle, or the silver piano. Your luck will follow if you see that load of wood in a dream. Barrels of it! Because to dream of barrels signifies that you will shortly come into possession of a good-sized fortune, if the barrels are empty. But beware of dreaming of barrels of beer! For this is a sign of much labor with little profit.

Dream Editor:

I dreamed last night I was sitting in my kitchen reading the Boston American and that it said there was to be a violent storm today. What does that mean?

R. E. SANDERS.

Reading.

To read a newspaper in one's dreams is warning to the dreamer that someone is to tell him a falsehood. The storm in this case is just a further warning of this kind. So be careful for a few days not to put too much faith in what people tell you, particularly about yourself, because the falsehood foretold by the storm is a form of flattery.

Dream Editor:

What is to happen when a man picks pink snakes and yellow alligators off the wallpaper?

Arlington. P. D. Q.

I trust this was really a dream, P. D. Q., because otherwise I should be inclined to believe that your worst enemy was the kind of home brew you have been consuming lately. Snakes always signify enemies. Look out for some people who are trying to harm you. The dream would indicate you are entirely ignorant of this, so look around before you go into that particular business deal you are contemplating.

Dream Editor:

I had a frightful dream a few night ago. There was a lion at our table and he was growling at me something awful, insisting that I was to be his next meal. Fortunately, I woke up before it came round. What on earth did that mean? C. C. M.

Newton Highlands.

This is indeed good news for you. The conversation with the lion means that you will have a talk with someone in high authority and will gain greatly thereby, being raised to a position of importance.

Dream Editor:

Is it all right to see a shoemaker in a dream? He was making wooden shoes like the Dutch people wear, and when I put them on they fitted me very nicely, besides being as soft as leather ones.

Cambridge. N. C. M.

Evidently you are to be luckier than most mortals, N. C. M. Your seeing the shoemaker indicates you are about to receive some small amounts of money which in time past you have loaned to your friends. The wooden shoes also show an increase in your fortunes.

The Dream Editor of the Boston American will tell you the meaning of that dream you had last night. Write her about it in detail and watch for your answer. All letters about dreams should be addressed to "Dream Editor, Boston American, 80 Summer street, Boston, Mass."

COLLEGE PROFESSOR UNDER OBSERVATION

New York, April 28.—Afflicted with what surgeons said was temporary mental suffering due to a severe shock, William Lindsay, formerly professor of chemistry in Dickinson University, Carlisle, Pa., today was confined in the psychopathic ward of Bellevue Hospital for observation. Mrs. Lindsay said her husband recently had lost $20,000 through the dishonesty of a brokerage house with which he had been dealing.

TWO ARRESTED AS CAMBRIDGE HIGHWAYMEN

John O'Hark, 23 years old, of No. 89 Amory street, Cambridge, felled with a blackjack and robbed of $31 while homeward bound in the early morning hours, was sent from Municipal Hospital, Cambridge, today by police to identify two suspects arrested as his assailants.

They were Anthony Ferrari, 22 years old of Montana, and James W. Colzie, colored, of Hartford.

Both are circus "lumpers" in Cambridge with a one-ring circus and ballyhoo show in a Lansdowne street lot.

O'Hara faced the men at police headquarters and said:

"The white man's the one who hit me with the blackjack; I'm not sure about the shine."

The men were held on a charge of robbery.

O'Hara was struck down at Prospect and Summer streets.

Several stitches were required to close a gaping wound in his head. He was confined to the hospital until today.

Ferrari and Colzie were arrested by Patrolmen Driscoll, King and Cahalan.

SAFE RIPPERS IN LAWRENCE GET RICH LOOT

Lawrence, April 28.—Safe-crackers smashed their way into the office of the Texas Oil Company today, pried the door off the safe and escaped with a large sum of money, which had been put in an iron cash box.

Officials of the company have not as yet been able to estimate exactly the amount of money which had been on hand.

The cash box, which had been forced open and looted, was found not far from the Boston & Maine station in North Andover this forenoon, shortly after employes of the oil company had discovered the break.

Lawrence police believe the job is the work of professional cracksmen operating throughout New England, with headquarters either in Boston or Providence.

The door of the safe was apparently smashed with a pickax after more subtle tools of the profession had failed. Some tools were left behind by the cracksmen.

Queen on Way to Funeral

Paris, April 28.—The Queen of Spain, accompanied by Infantas Christiane and Beatrice, is due in Paris by special car tonight, and will depart immediately for London to attend the funeral Monday of her brother, Lord Montbatten.

VETERANS' POLL TAX BILL PASSES HOUSE

A bill to continue the exemption of war veterans from the payment of the $5 poll tax was passed by the House today. The House also passed a bill to allow $50 to American Legion posts for the funeral expenses of veterans whose bodies are returned from overseas.

PUBLISHERS ELECT HUB MAN DIRECTOR

New York, April 28.—Paul Patterson of the Baltimore Sun was elected president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association at the convention here today. He succeeds Thomas H. Williams of Pittsburgh. Charles H. Taylor of Boston was elected a director.

NEW SLEEPING SICKNESS IS FATAL TO ONE

Five Others Stricken With Ailment in Strange Form in New Jersey

Paterson, N. J., April 28.—The form of sleeping sickness which physicians declare is new to the medical profession, has claimed one victim and five others are suffering from it. The most peculiar symptom of the disease is that persons stricken with it have double vision.

The disease became pronounced Wednesday night in the case of John L. Van Mannen, thirty-six, and despite the efforts of nine physicians to revive him he died. Samuel Thompson, janitor of a public school, is seriously ill with the disease.

Dr. Isaac Surmaner said he and other physicians have been unable to trace the cause of the disease and as yet have found no method of preventing it. The first symptom of the disease, according to a report prepared by the doctors, is an abnormal sleepiness, followed by periods of stupor and double vision, which later becomes constant.

HOUSES AND WOODS BURN IN ADAMSDALE

Attleboro, April 28.—Three company houses wer burned and four acres of timber damaged by a forest fire in Adamsdale Village today The fire started from a spark from an engine. The houses burned were owned by the Charles Thompson Company, cotton yarn manufacturers. The company's mill was threatened. The fire spread toward Cumberland, R. I., and the local fire fighters were joined by men from Cumberland and North Attleboro.

HADDOCK HITS HIGH RECORD, 10½ CENTS

The wholesale price of haddock in Boston today jumped to 10½ cents a pound, the highest price ever recorded for that commodity in times of peace. Steak cod, which usually brings two or three times as much as haddock, sold for only 4½ cents today. Fishing skippers report that almost no haddock are being taken on the banks.

MEDBURY

Says Bachelors Know More About Married Life Than Anybody. That's Why They're Bachelors

Government reports show that bachelors are becoming more numerous every day and the reason for it is women.

The average bachelor is in favor of marriage, but not for himself.

He believes in double harness, but only for horses

He figures that marriage wouldn't be bad at all if you could leave the women out of it.

A bachelor is never lonesome; he's kept busy listening to the troubles of his married friends.

There is an old saying, "He who hesitates is lost," but it's wrong. He who hesitates remains single.

A bachelor may be going about with a girl he's very fond of and there's no use in busting up their friendship by getting married.

Some men remain bachelors because they think they've been disappointed in love, but this is not so. You can't be disappointed in love until you've been married.

Two can live cheaper than one, but it's worth a little extra to stay single.

One guy got a terrible fright on his wedding day, and he's still got her.

The average bachelor takes his time and waits for Miss Right to come along. But the chances are when Miss Right comes along he's out with Miss Left.

Most bachelors can read a woman like a book, and that's why they never get any further than the introduction.

But it's hard right now for a man to remain single—he's got too much competition.

Divorce lawyers are making so much money that a lot of ministers are studying law.

When a fellow does get married nowadays he gets the preacher to tie a slip-knot.

Once in awhile a woman marries a man to change him, but the trouble is some women change husbands too often.

A lot of girls think that bachelors don't know anything about married life, but they do. That's why they're bachelors.

WORKERS STONED AT R. I. BRIDGE

Westerly, R. I., April 28.—Three truckloads of men from New York City who were being brought here today to work on the new sewage system, were met on the Pawtucket River bridge at the Connecticut State line by representatives of the Hod Carriers' and Common Laborers' Union, who informed them a strike was in progress.

When the trucks attempted to cross the bridge they were met by a shower of stones. The driver of one vehicle, R. L. Rose of New London, Ct., was injured. Another stone broke a window of a trolley car, striking a passenger.

The men in the trucks scattered to the Connecticut side of the river, where they held impromptu meetings to demand their carfare back to New York.

FEAR OF GIRLS KEEPS MASTER ON HIS SHIP

New York, April 28.—The "man without a country" has been found. He arrived in New York today and signed his name to the ship's papers of the steamer Esparta as Captain G. O'Neil, and did not fill in the dotted line for his "home port," because he has no home.

"My home is the "sea," Captain O'Neil said. "I have had no other home since I was ten years old. I have travelled 2,180,000 miles over the seven seas in thirty-eight years as a seaman. I would not share my home—and my home is my ship with any woman. And there ain't no wife in every port for me, I don't go ashore any more.

"A man's life ain't safe ashore any more with women going around the way they do. That's the reason I gave up passenger ships. Too many women.

"No woman gets aboard my ship unless she has a husband and she's got to stick close to him or go ashore."

4 JAILED FOR DRIVING EXPERT TO SUICIDE

HARVARD GRAD WANTS TO WED OLIVIA STONE

New York, April 28.—Women who kill men do not necessarily lack for suitors if acquitted according to Miss Olivia M. P. Stone, who shot Ellis Guy Kinkead and was freed by a jury.

Returning from Atlantic City Miss Stone said she has received eleven proposals of marriage since the Kinkead tragedy. But, she added, she would not accept any of them.

Speaking of her suitors, she said: "A Harvard graduate was one of the eleven who proposed. He wrote that he was touched by my sad experience and wanted me to be his wife. A Manhattan broker sent a registered letter, asking me to marry him. Altogether I received over 1,000 letters of sympathy."

Her mind broken by the strain of the long trial, Mrs. Kinkaid, widow of the man who was slain by Miss Stone, was confined in a strait jacket today in King's County Hospital, a pitiful aftermath of the tragedy.

Mrs. Kinkead tried diligently to send Mis Stone to the electric chair for the killing of her husband, and in the days following Miss Stone's acquital the widow's reason snapped under the strain of worry and despondency.

Physicians said Mrs. Kinkead talked constantly of her former life in Cincinnati and apparently does not remember the tragedy that took her husband.

FEIGNS SUICIDE TO WIN WIFE'S LOVE BACK

San Francisco, April 28 (By International News Service). — Mrs. Jean Middleton Block, violinist and dancer, has filed suit for divorce against Nathan D. Block of New York, a wealthy leather goods manufacturer.

She alleges cruelty and asserts that her husband pretended to attempt suicide in order to win her back.

Mrs. Block alleges her husband was jealous of art, forbade her playing the violin and threw out of the window flowers she brought home.

She was married to him, she said, after a two weeks' courtship. After she left him, she said, he followed her all over the United States, pleading for her to return to him.

PLAN HEARING TOMORROW ON PROBATION BILL

A hearing will be held at the State House tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock on a bill which provides that a person convicted in a district or superior court may receive a suspended imprisonment sentence and be placed on probation by the presiding judge.

This bill was recently passed by both houses and awaits the Governor's signature. It has been protested by the Massachusetts Civic Alliance that it would tend to increase crime.

SCARCITY OF HADDOCK REPORTED BY FISHERMEN

Fishermen coming in from the fishing grounds report a great dearth of haddock. Usually the most plentiful fish in the market, the price of haddock runs from one-quarter to one-half of the price of steak cod. Today the order is reversed, haddock selling in the wholesale market up to seven cents a pound, while large cod brings only three and a half cents.

PAYS FARE OF FRIEND, WHO THEN ROBS HIM

Rahway, N. J., April 28.—Michael Kolack was found wandering the streets by police after, according to his story, he had been robbed of $350 by a friend, Joseph Halsisk, whose fare to New York he had just paid.

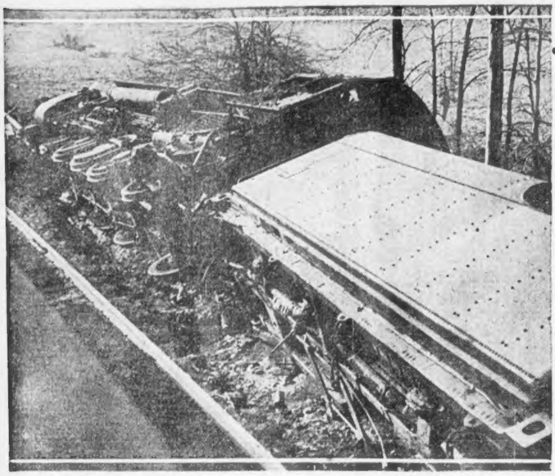
WRECK THE WRONG TRAIN IN $1,000,000 BAY STATE PLOT



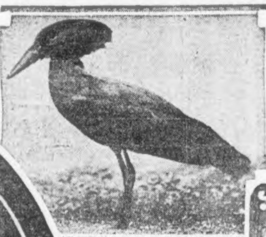
PLOWED 600 FEET ALONG ROAD BED! Engine and tender of fast freight which left the irons near Framingham when train robbers spread the rails hoping to hold up fast mail with $1,000,000 consigned to Boston banks. They got the wrong train.

A PIG THE ONLY VICTIM! Hogs and cattle being rushed to Boston slaughter houses were unscathed, although scattered over the right of way—all except one little porker. Three men in the engine cab had remarkable escapes.

TALKING IT OVER AFTERWARD! Railroad men inspecting wrecked cars and figuring out the best way to pick up the pieces and get the rails cleared for business as usual. Battered cars in the background bumped over the ties for 200 yards.

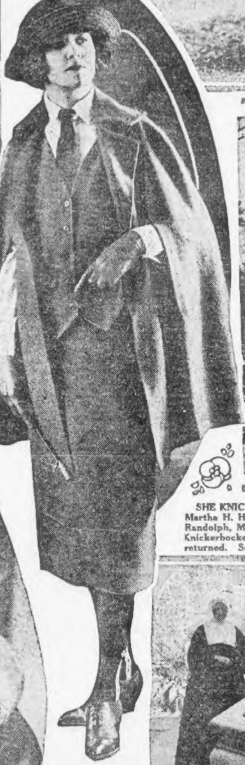
RADIATING CHARM AT BREAKFAST! There's nothing like music with your meals, says pretty Chrystine Miller of No. 17 Lakeville place, Jamaica Plain, so she uses a radiophone to hear the latest jazz while enjoying her hummingbird's eyebrows, or whatever it is cute girlies eat for breakfast. But imagine how difficult it is to shimmy a breakfast to the tuune of a teasing jazz melody!

"ROUNDING LIPS LIKE CUPID'S BOW!" The poet probably had Charlotte Doyle of Revere in mind when he wrote the lines. Beauty experts say she has "perfect lips." Do you know any girl with any more perfect? Send in her picture



A BIRD OF A BIRD! Here is the rarest bird living, the hammerhead of Africa. The Boston zoo isn't likely to get one because there are only two in captivity. Both are in the London zoo. (International News Reel.)

BOY OF TODAY AND BIKE OF YESTERDAY! Gosh, who'd want to ride on the handle bars, eh, fellas? George Breslin of Roslindale will mount this sturdy steel (vintage of 1880) and give the gallery a treat on the Boston American's Bicycle Run next Sunday. It's a two-man bike. One rides and the other picks you up when you fall.



A LITTLE SPORT! New England started the sport fad in garments, and by gum, New England is gonna finish it. Here is the latest sport togs—vest and cape fashioned of brown homespun. (Underwood)

SHE KNICKED US FOR A FIVER! Miss Martha H. Hylon of No. 377 West street, Randolph, Mass., is today's winner in the Knickerbocker girl test. All photos will be returned. Send them to Pictorial Editor.

SHE HAS IT! What? Why "Professionalitis"! Miss Sylvia Waite, as a mere man in the Professions' Women's Club show at the National Theatre on Saturday night, and, below, at right, as she is "without her makeup" (no pun intended). (Photos by Craftsman Studios.)

MRS. GUY FITZ, chairman of the general committee in charge of the charity ball to be given in City Hall, Lewiston, Me., on May Day for the benefit of the Central Maine Hospital of that city.

WORCESTER'S TOY BABY Is Growing! Mrs. Leon H. Blaney of No. 46 Hollywood street and Eunace, who weighed but one and one-half pounds when she was born on February 20.

BOSTON TOURISTS SEE A LITTLE SPANISH ART! And to look at the photograph it is obvious that real Spanish is not throwing the bull. These American visitors to sunny Spain are gathered around one of the beautiful fifteenth century fountains in the courtyard of the famous orphanage at Seville. Among the prominent Boston folk present are Mr. and Mrs. I. H. Pomroy. (Underwood.)

CALZA WINS VERDICT OVER LONDOS IN BATTLE ON MAT

GREEK FAILS TO TOSS ITALIAN IN HOUR

George Calza advanced one notch higher in the hall of fame when he was proclaimed a winner over Jimmy Londos at the Grand Opera House last night. Londos had agreed to throw Calza twice within one hour.

The latest Italian sensation not only went the distance with the Greek champion, but outclassed him all through the match. Calza forced the wrestling from start to finish and seemed on the verge of pinning the favorite at least a dozen times.

It was one of the best matches seen in Boston in some time and the rival followers were on their feet cheering during the greater part of the hour that the rivals wrestled.

At no time during the match was the Italian idol in danger of being thrown. Londos succeeded in getting his toe hold a few times, but the husky son of Italy always had the strength to break loose. On the other hand, Calza had Londos in bad shape throughout the entire bout.

Calza was the first to enter the ring. He was greeted with a storm of cheers, in fact there is doubt that any wrestler has ever been more warmly received. Londos followed soon after and his followers received him enthusiastically.

Hardly had the match got under way, when Calza sent the house into a turmoil by carrying the bout to his more experienced opponent. During the first ten minutes, Londos was in danger no less than five times.

During the next twenty minutes Calza was on top of the favorite and it seemed certain that he would land a successful stranglehold. Londos, however, proved too smart for his rugged opponent, and always managed to find a way out of his difficulties.

During this period Calza was using a stranglehold and armlock to very good advantage. Londos, when not on the defensive, resorted to the toe hold.

Calza seemed to improve as the match progressed, and it looked that he would not only go the distance, but that he would surely score a fall over the stocky Londos. Jimmy opened up during the closing minutes of the match and the large crowd was on its feet when the hour was up.

Calza is now in line for matches with the best wrestlers in the world, and he may be matched with Plastina in the near future. Previous to the match, a telegram from the manager of Plastina was read. Plastina agreed to give $1,000 to the winner if he did not succeed in throwing him within ninety minutes.

The Grand Opera House was jammed to the walls, and at least 3,000 people were turned away.

Nick Karavas defeated Kid Roy in nineteen minutes. John Kilonis scored a win over Fred Lurich in thirty minutes and fifteen seconds. Kilonis pinned Lurich with a flying mare. Yussif Hussane the Terrible Turk, defeated Fred Aberg the Russian Lion, after twenty-five minutes of hard wrestling.

Jack Conway Dopes Wrestling to Perfection

Jack Conway doped the wrestling bout to perfection. Jack predicted that Calza would prove too strong and too tough for Jimmy Londos, all of which came true.

Conway said that Calza would win, but, only after a furious battle, and it was a furious battle.

Those who read Jack's dope of the big bout will agree that the American expert hit the nail on the head again.

Jack has picked eleven straight winners. Watch his dope if you want to know who will win.

THREE MIDDLESEX TEAMS GET GOING TOMORROW

The Middlesex School athletic combinations will have a busy day tomorrow. The nine will play its annual game with Milton Academy at Concord.

The tennis team will open its season on the Middlesex courts playing singles and doubles matches with Browne and Nichols.

The crew will also open its season, rowing Choate School at Wallingford, Ct.

B. U. MEETS AMHERST ON TRACK

The Boston University track team will meet Amherst tomorrow at Amherst. This is the first outdoor test of the season for Boston University. Coach H[illegible] has put the [illegible] through hard practice the past week and expects to put up a good fight.

[illegible] Captain Woodward, Akin, Limric, Bowen and Stacey made good in the indoor season [illegible] in the 440 [illegible] Woodward is entered for three events—the 100 yard and 220 yard and hurdles.

McDonald, a former Boston College High man, will enter in the 100 yard dash and will also enter in the broad jump, discus and shot put. He made good at Boston College High in both football and track and is expected to make a good showing.

Bowen and Stacey are the boys picked to win in the mile run and the odds are pretty even as to which will brush the tape first. Stacey is also out for the two mile event, with Dixon, Dodds and Higgins.

The Boston University entries are as follows:

100 Yard—Limric, McDonald, Woodward and [illegible].
220 Yard—Limric, Powers, Richards and [illegible].
440 Yard—Lord, Mathewson, Robertson and Woodward.
880 Yard—Akin, Jenkins and Moody.
[illegible] Dixon, Dodds, Higgins and Stacey.
Hurdles—Mathewson, R[illegible] and W[illegible].
High Jump—Moody, Sweetman and Farrell.
Broad Jump—[illegible], McDonald, Pettengill and Rubenstein.
[illegible]
Discus—McDonald and Washburn.

[illegible] hopes to enter the Boston University men in the open Y. M. C. A. hand-up meet May 6.

HARRY CARLSON WINNER AGAINST SAILOR BYRON

Worcester, April 28.—Harry Carlson of Brockton defeated Sailor Byron of Worcester in ten rounds tonight at the Lake A. C. boxing show in the Casino. Toby Doherty knocked out Sharkey Scales in the second round. In the semi-final Scoop White won a questionable decision over Mickey Green, and Joe Lombardo of Worcester beat Scotty Sharpe of Fitchburg in six rounds.

LEONARD FIGHT WITH LEW IS CERTAIN

By ED CURLEY.

New York, April 28.—Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler will battle at B[illegible] Thirty Acres in Jersey City, according to the latest dope. The bout will be a twelve-round, no decision affair, as New Jersey does not allow the referee to decide a victor.

This fight would draw a gate between $100,000 and $[illegible].

Tendler will fight [illegible] Barrett in an open air scrap on June 2 in an eight-round affair. [illegible] isn't tackling a soft one in [illegible] for the latter is the problem of [illegible]. [illegible] is endowed with a left [illegible] packs a mean kick. He's one of the lads that is never beaten [illegible]. He's apt to [illegible] Tendler [illegible].

KANALY PLANS SQUAD FOR NOVICES

Coach Frank M. Kanaly's policy of giving every man at Tech out for track a chance to show his wares in some form of [illegible] competition has resulted in the formation of a "novice" team.

Every man, unable to earn a position on the regular team, is eligible for the novice squad. It enters into its first meet tomorrow with Newton High on the Tech Field.

It is possible that a few discoveries may be made which would not otherwise appear. The elimination of the drudgery and the lack of interest of the substitute is best e[illegible] [illegible] in this way.

The team is only an experiment, but Coach Kanaly has great hopes for its future.

CHAMPION GIANTS OPEN SERIES WITH BRAVES AT WIGWAM

WATSON AND NEHF TO WORK IN BOX

By NICK FLATLEY.

John McGraw and his world champion Giants registered in Boston today, for what [illegible] to as a very pleasant five-day visit. They play four [illegible] the Braves at the Wigwam, have Sunday for rest and golf, and, all in all, are perfectly contented with life and everything.

The [illegible] from the [illegible] now they have the local entry figured out as very soft [illegible] cannot be blamed for that in view of what has happened thus far in the collision 'twixt the Mitchmen and the Dodgers and Phils.

The Napoleon, as he is called, of Baseball, has his title bearers going on high. Thus far the Giants have won ten games and lost but three, and if somebody doesn't stop them soon, the race will be all over before it's warm enough to really play ball.

McGraw has been lucky enough to have [illegible] get [illegible] ing [illegible] to make the best [illegible] in the league take [illegible] parade. While it [illegible] for the inhabitants [illegible] to have the [illegible] before the [illegible] get [illegible].

This [illegible] to a big year, but [illegible] removed unless there [illegible] right through [illegible] teams in the league figure to battle the Giants, but pursuit will be hopeless, if the efficient McGraw clan gets too much of a start.

Time Ripe for Braves to Start Some Excitement

[illegible] this [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] athletes [illegible] every [illegible] and just as soon as the Mitchell hurlers show anything at all, the results [illegible].

John Watson [illegible] for today's pitching, and John has displayed quite a lot of stuff within the past week. [illegible] to go the whole route, but he can be depended on for a few rounds, anyhow. He pitches [illegible] effort and the weather isn't as likely to affect him as much as it does some of the others.

His arm "froze" in the Philly series, but that was because of an unduly long rest on the bench, while the Braves were having one of those long innings. Under ordinary circumstances [illegible] can [illegible] day just as well as the next fellow.

Southpaw Nehf, Star Member of Giant Hurling Corps.

Art Nehf, one of the best of the [illegible] hurlers, is playing a leading role in the New York march to another pennant. The former Brave has been winning constantly, and is one of the very best bets in the matter of opening engagements. He was due to face the Mitchmen today, which didn't make prospects over bright, but the locals haven't any too much regard for nifty Arthur.

They have managed to knock him off in other years, and they hit him for several goals in the only game [illegible] this Spring [illegible] Art from [illegible] one of the finest defensive [illegible] ever [illegible] out.

Boston fans are likely to see a lot of great fielding when the teams are [illegible] and the fact that [illegible] are [illegible] up against [illegible] strap the Braves [illegible] their real stride.

Up to Umpires to Speed Along Pastimes

Games this Spring have been extremely draggy. Hardly a contest [illegible] been played here in less than an hour and three-quarters. That has been due mostly to the poor brand of pitching, with the [illegible] elementary flock of scoring, [illegible] so the umpires might help things by hurrying the athletes along.

Extended pastimes are found to [illegible] to the [illegible] every [illegible] and [illegible]

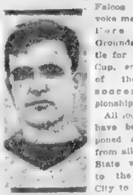
ABBOTS OPPOSE FALCOS IN SOCCER

By ART CURLY.

All former attendance records for Quincy are expected to be broken tomorrow afternoon when the Abbot Worsteds of Forge Village and the Falcos of Holyoke meet on the Fore River Grounds to battle for the State Cup, emblematic of the State soccer championship.



JACK KERSHAW

All local games have been postponed and fans from all over the State will flock to the Granite City to see these two evenly matched teams in action. It is the big game of the season and local followers are very fortunate in having it staged so near Boston.

That a close, hard-fought contest is in store is generally understood, and it will be a tough job to try to pick the winner beforehand. The Abbots will enter the fray a slight favorite in view of the 3-to-1 victory over the Falcos at Pawtucket in the National Cup competition several weeks ago which they have to their credit.

The Abbot Lineup will be the same one that has worked so well together all season: McIntosh, goal, Hulse and Ross, fullbacks, Cosgrove, Keney and Duncan, halfbacks, Farquhar, Page, Kershaw, Kane and McMasters, forwards.

Jackie Kershaw, the Worsted's hustling centre forward, will be the man to watch. It will be remembered that in the previous clash between these two outfits, Jackie registered all three counts, although Barnett covered him pretty well until removed from the game with Davy Page for attempting to fight. [illegible] right [illegible] play [illegible] a better game [illegible] ever did before. He is as slippery as an eel and has a shot that is effective from all angles.

Kershaw is given every opportunity to shoot by his teammates in the forward rank. Farquhar and McMasters in the extreme wing positions have few their equal in local [illegible] speed [illegible] middle name, and [illegible] crosses are [illegible].

On [illegible] other hand Kershaw has a partner in Page and Kane [illegible] Kane is not so much on shooting but the former Fore River star is likely to score anytime.

The Worsteds are noted for their real defense. The halfback line, which is the backbone of any team, is all that it should be. Kelly in the centre breaks up many an offensive drive while Cosgrove and Duncan hold down the opposing wing men in good shape.

Ross and Hulse are a team in themselves, both are aggressive and [illegible] strong sure kickers. Big Angus McIntosh between the uprights is rated as the best goalie in New England and has fairly won his reputation. TUFTS WHITEWASHES BOSTON UNIVERSITY

Tufts shut out Boston University at Tufts Oval, Medford, 8 to 0. B. U. played a very good game up to the fourth inning and then fell down. Tufts rallied in the fourth inning, scoring one run, three in the fifth, one in the sixth, two in the seventh, and one in the eighth.

Weafer pitched for Tufts, and [illegible] and Poland for Boston University. Weafer allowed only two hits while Tufts [illegible] thirteen hits. [illegible], the [illegible] shortstop of B. U. made two costly errors, allowing three runs.

Tufts made two doubles and three triples. Weafer struck out eight men.

LEOMINSTER DEFEATS THE WINCHENDON TEAM

Leominster, April 28.—Leominster High defeated Winchendon High, 10 to 5. Leominster has won every game played so far this season. Boutelle, Winchendon pitcher, struck out ten, but was poorly supported at all times.

The features of the game were two home runs, one by Wyman of Leom-

BETWEEN ROUNDS

By RINGSIDE

Pete "Sailor" Byren, Worcester lightweight, collides with Young Terrier at Woonsocket tonight. This is a twelve-round affair.

* * *

Billy Goodrich has arranged an all-star card for the Olympic A. C. of Brockton for tonight. Frankie Quill of Brockton and Billy Carney of New Bedford will meet in the final ten-round number. Tony Julian of Brockton and Billy Shine of Quincy will box ten frames as will Willie Nelson of Brockton and Kid Lee of Chelsea. Willie Garo of Boston and Johnny Barrett of Cambridge are down to travel six chapters.

* * *

Freddy O'Brien has another amateur show billed for the Chelsea A. A. for Saturday night. They'll be bouts at 112 pounds for novices and at 126 and 135 pounds for boys who have had some experience.

* * *

Patsy DeLucca writes from Providence that he would like to secure a bout with Paddy Flynn, Pat Walsh or Leo Downey. Patsy still believes he packs a kick in his right.

* * *

Paul Bowser backed George Calza once more last night.

* * *

Gardini recently asked $4,000 to meet Calza. He said he was the card. The Newark affair changed conditions.

* * *

* * *

* * *

Jimmy Fruzetti is looking up once more.

* * *

* * *

There's a big rush on for reservations for the Shevlin Siegal bout. The fans are quick to recognize a real attraction.

* * *

* * *

Moore was worse.

* * *

Rickard is going to go back into the Garden.

* * *

Of course Leo P. Flynn will remain as his man Friday even though he insists he is out.

* * *

Dan Morgan and Billy Gibson are out boosting Rickard. Boxing is a great little game.'

TECH CREWS ON THE SEVERN TODAY

Tech's two varsity crews will arrive at Annapolis today and will engage in two practice sessions in warming up for races with the Navy eights on the Severn tomorrow. The crews were accompanied by two substitutes A. R. Prouty, who rows at stroke and H. B. Davis and Coach Arthur W. Stevens, Patrick Manning, rigger, and Manager Roscoe E. Smith.

The first varsity races against the senior Navy crew which is practically the same combination that won the intercollegiate championships last year and the second varsity engages with the Middies junior crew and it is possible that the Navy plebes will enter in that race also if Coach Stevens and the manager have no objections.

It is a forgone conclusion that the Engineers have slim chances of defeating the speedy Sailors. Here is one place where the masters of land forces are powerless against a strong Navy, notwithstanding the fact that the armament conference had shorn the latter of most of its former effectiveness.

Even the second varsity will have to go some to score a win over the Navy juniors.

First varsity—Bow L. T. Blood; 2, J. C. Molnar; 3, W. D. Driscoll; 4, A. M. Valentine; 5, R. C. Eaton; 6, A. K. Greatwood; 7, Captain H. W. McCurdy; Stroke, J. L. Brill, and Coxswain, W. B. Kean.

DUFFYS OPEN SERIES WITH YANKEES

New York, April 28.—Hugh Duffy's Red Sox reported here today to start a game series with the league leading Yankees. They play through until Tuesday, and then go home to entertain the Western clubs.

The Sox, a hard hitting outfit, have been having a lot of pitching trouble. They knocked off the Athletics in Philadelphia, but ran into a flock of bother in Washington, where the Senators took three in a row.

The Boston entry piled up enough runs to win a couple of the games, but all their pitchers were hammered hard, and [illegible] amount to a thing. Duffy has half a dozen hurlers expected to [illegible] into shape very quickly, and hopes for the best here.

The league manager thinks he has a first division club and is anxious [illegible] ve it for the skeptical Boston fans, who are inclined to give all their sympathy to the Braves since Everett Scott and Stuffy McInnis were traded.

Bennie Kerr, the fork ball pitcher, who has been the most successful of the staff thus far, was due to take the mound in the opening contest this afternoon.

BIG AMATEUR BOXING TOURNEY AT NEW YORK

New York, April 28.—Arrangements for an amateur boxing tournament at Madison Square Garden on May 17 and 18 will be completed at a meeting of the Metropolitan A. A. A. U. boxing committee tomorrow.

Many amateur boxers who competed in the National championships at Boston last week will be invited to compete, and it is likely all of the newly crowned champions will be seen in action.

DARTMOUTH TENNIS TEAM PLAYS NEWTON SATURDAY

Hanover, N. H., April 28.—Dartmouth's tennis team will play Brown at Providence today and the Newton Centre tennis club Saturday at Newton. Three champions, Sanders, New England intercollegiate singles champion, Howe, New England doubles champion with Sanders, and Carleton, former New England intercollegiate doubles champion, are on the Green team.

SHEVLIN'S ARM RIGHT FOR SIEGAL BOUT

By JACK CONWAY

"What is the condition of Eddie Shevlin's left arm?"

This is the question we hurled at Billy Henderson, manager of the Roxbury welterweight who takes on Nate Siegal at the Boston Arena Monday night.

"Eddie's arm has not bothered him at all since he resumed training ten days ago," replied Henderson. "The doctors tell us that the member is as good as ever," he continued. "This makes us feel very confident about the result of Monday night's bout with Siegal.

"There may be welterweights who are able to win over Shevlin, but Nate is not one of them. These rivals have already collided four times. Shevlin won two decisions, another bout was a draw while the fourth affair ended in Siegal's favor.

Says Injured Arm Gave Victory to Siegal

"Shevlin, like myself, has never believed in offering an alibi. When Eddie has lost, we have been the first to give the victor full credit. We do not believe, though, that Siegal would have received the decision in his last clash with Shevlin if the latter had been right. Trouble with his left arm prevented Eddie from landing heavy punches to the jaw. It also made it impossible for him to pick off Nate's right-hand socks in the air. He was obliged to try to avoid heavy wallops to the jaw by moving his body.

"A long rest has restored Shevlin to his old self. He will be the two-fisted fighting man guided by a master brain when the bell sounds for the opening round Monday night. I wouldn't make such a statement if I didn't honestly believe that the Roxbury boy is right. I would not care to hand a wrong tip to Shevlin's big army of followers."

Arena Will Be Jammed When Rivals Clash

It is a peculiar thing about ring contests. It would appear that when boxers have already battled four times the interest in a tussle between them would not be very great. But like the teams of Britton and Lewis and Langford and Jeanette, Shevlin and Siegal always play to a capacity house. This is because they furnish a real fight. The rivalry between the two men and their followers is intense. Shevlin's skill and speed has enabled him to gain the edge in most of the encounters, but Siegal has always been in there fighting like a big leaguer.

Siegal Will Enter the Ring at Catchweights

The fact the bout will be at catchweights leads Siegal's admirers to feel he will gain the award. The last Shevlin-Siegal frolic was at catchweights, which enable Nate to enter the ring with all of his strength. The Revere man was also at catchweights when he fought his win battle with Tommy Robson.

Paul Doyle Intends to Battle All Comers

Paul Doyle has decided that the best way to keep fit is to clash with all comers. The Palazolo entry had not boxed for ten weeks up to the time he met Mike Dawson at the Arena Monday night. In future Doyle will show a couple of times a month, which will enable him to display a little more speed.

Eddie Mahoney Didn't Sign for Bout at Arena

Eddie Mahoney, California lightweight, didn't sign to box Paul Doyle at the Arena. He says he was offered the match as an eleventh hour substitute, but declined to [illegible] as he was not in condition to [illegible].

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 28.—Some four thousand lightly clad young men disport themselves on the greensward of Franklin Field this afternoon.

There are the greatest athletes that five hundred schools and colleges can produce, and their presence in Philadelphia can be charged, or credited, to the staging of the twenty-eighth annual University of Pennsylvania Relay Carnival.

In this annual event the college and school track forces of the country make their Springtime bow to the sport-following public. It is in this meet that the first accurate estimate of the quality of our athletes for the ensuing year can be made. Stars of the past year, or years, reappear in all their glory, and newer stars, some even more brilliant than those of the past, present themselves and their possibilities.

The meet, which begins at 2 o'clock this afternoon and continues until after 6 o'clock tomorrow evening, has attracted the largest field of entrants in the nearly thirty years of Pennsy relay carnivals. Notwithstanding this, however, it has not evidenced the nation-wide and international appeal of former years.

Middle West, Coast and South Not Well Represented

The Middle West and the Pacific coast, which have been largely represented in past carnivals, have sent but few relay teams and special event performers this year; the South is not so well represented as it has been in other years, and neither England nor France has entered men, as was the case for the past two or three years, and the years immediately preceding the war.

But despite the largely Eastern flavor of the games there is no lack of real quality in the fields that will report to the starting marks of the field event pits and runways.

Several world's record holders, many national champions and intercollegiate titlists and a number of athletes who saw service in the recent Olympiad at Antwerp, are included in the list of performers who will appear in the events of today and tomorrow and that other collegiate, national and possibly world's records will be established before the carnival is ended is the general expectation.

Major Portion of Today's Card Is for Schoolboys

The major portion of the opening day is given over to schoolboy athletes. There are eight grammar school events, three parochial school relays and nine high school of preparatory school contests.

However, the schoolboys do not have the day to themselves, for the events open to college men include the pentathlon, the 440-yard hurdles the two-mile run, the hammer throw, the running hop, step and jump, the one-quarter-mile college relay championship and real and thrilling competition seems assured in each one of these numbers.

The pentathlon, which is made up of a broad jump, a javelin throw, a 200-meter dash, a discus throw and a 1,500-meter run, finds among its more prominent entrants Bob Legendre of Georgetown, who captured the victory last year and in 1919; S Harrison Thompson of Princeton, the national pentathlon titleholder; Brutus Hamilton of Missouri, the former relay carnival and national pentathlon winner, and several others of real record or promise. Both Legendre and Hamilton were members of the recent American Olympic team and each scored in the all-around events at Antwerp.

Gus Desch Is the Star in the Quarter Mile Hurdles

The star entrant in the 440-yard hurdles is Gus Desch of Notre Dame, who, at the Pennsy carnival last year, set a new world's record for this event.

In the two-mile run Ray Buker of Bates, winner last year, and New England intercollegiate two-mile titlist; Norman P. Brown of Cornell, the intercollegiate A. A. A. A. two-mile indoor champion, and possibly Robert E. Brown of Cornell, the intercollegiate A. A. A. A. two-mile outdoor champion, will be among the starts and a race of rare proportions seems assured.

Captain J. Fiske Brown of Harvard, international intercollegiate hammer throw champion, looms as the strongest performer in the weight event on today's program.

George Dandrow of Tech, winner of the Penney weight throw last year is eligible to compete under the carnival rules, but it was not certain at this writing that he would do so.

B. C. TO TACKLE N. H. OUTFIT AT HEIGHTS

The Boston College nine is all set for the final battle of the week with New Hampshire State, after defeating Maine yesterday. Maine put up a much stronger game than was anticipated, as they had been beaten by Harvard previously, 3 to 0.

Torsleff, who started for Maine, had the Maroon and Gold batters guessing for six innings, and was backed up by fine support from his team mates. Maine was leading, 2 to 1, when B. C. came to bat in the seventh. Then Comerford beat out a bunt and Darling advanced him to second with a single.

Tommy Phillips took a healthy swing, and before the ball was recovered he had cleaned the sacks and romped across the plate himself, giving B. C. a lead of two runs. Palmer knocked in Cody before the half ended, and the Eagles maintained the three run lead until the game was over.

After seven innings of good work, Vargus was relieved by Mullowney, who held Maine in check for the rest of the game.

Today's game was to start at 3:15.

KID FIGHTERS TO MIX THINGS AT ST. JOSEPH'S

There will be battling in five classes at the St. Joseph's T. A. Society's amateur boxing tournament at Commercial Hall, Bowdoin square tonight. The classes are at 112, 118, 126 novice, 135 and 147 pounds.

Jack Kenney's announcement that he would present the winners with shoes has caused a row in the New England A. A. U. President Cuddy of the St. Joseph's T. A. Society originally planned to do this, but he was informed that this would be a violation of an amateur rule.

Kenney, a Boston newspaperman, then volunteered to give each winner a pair of shoes. The powers that rule amateur sports are up on their hind legs as it were, making a frightful squawk.

Maybe the kids will get their shoes after all.

SUGGS TO DEFEND HIS TITLE AGAINST ELKINS

Charlie K. O. Elkins has at last received his chance to regain the New England featherweight title for he has been signed to meet Chick Suggs, the crown-holder, in a ten-round bout at New Bedford on next Monday night.

Elkins has been on the trail of the colored battler ever since he lost a decision to the latter at Fall River. The South End boy has since won over Bobby Josephs, Young Nelson of Philadelphia and "Iron" Man" Hague of New Bedford.

DORCHESTER CLASHES WITH LATIN RIVALS

By FRED C. LANE.

The Dorchester High baseball nine will make a desperate attempt to get into a winning stride today, when it will meet Boston Latin at the Walpole Street Grounds.

Dorchester is still smarting under the defeat pinned on it by English High, considered much inferior, so that Latin must play its hardest to stave off defeat.

Should the weather prove warm Dorchester will have its work cut out to win over Edmund Harris, star Latin hurler. When this pitcher is in condition and warm weather is just his need, he is invincible.

On the other hand, "Lefty" Locke, equally effective in all kinds of weather, is the best hurler that Dorchester fans have witnessed in years. Dorchester has a team that hits well when in the lead. More fight and spirit is needed for them to win the championship of the city schools for the second year.

The Latin team of 1922 is not to be compared with those of previous years. It may be said that Latin is weak, especially in batting. Johnny Nordberg is a hard worker at second, but the energy of this lone star cannot make Latin a winning organization.

Commerce Picked to Capture Lowell Contest

Coach Ned Sherlock will lead his Commerce ball players against Lowell High this afternoon at Lowell. Not in years has Commerce been represented by such an array of talent. Nolan, mainstay in the box, has been pitching superb ball, giving his mates little to do in the field.

Lowell is but one of the outside teams that Commerce meets this Spring. The schedule calls for a flock of games outside the city, giving the lads on the team more interest in the national pastime.

Allen School and Groton have felt the pangs of defeat from the Commerce team, and Lowell is expected to get the same dose of medicine today. Harmony reigns throughout the squad, and this in no small way is responsible for their fine team play.

The fielding of Boston English High will have to improve considerably if they are to win over the Providence Tech nine this afternoon. Numerous infield errors have cost English two games this Spring. The old enthusiasm that gave English High winning outfits is lacking this year.

Little Interest Shown by Local High Schools

A school with such a large roster, without a championship team one year in three, in a fair way explains the situation of Boston High School athletics. Little or no interest is manifested throughout the school. In former years it was all a coach could do to cut down his squad. Such is not the condition at English or Latin this year, so that poor teams represent both institutions.

Other games to be played today are: Weymouth at Braintree, Reading at Lexington, Watertown at Lowell, Wakefield at Brockton, Stoughton at Milton, Roxbury at Thayer Academy, and Randolph at Avon.

CUDDY MURPHY PITCHES HIS NINE TO VICTORY

Manchester, N. H., April 28.—Plant Brothers A. A. defeated the New Hampshire State College team 6 to 3 here in a Fast Day contest.

Cronin, State's youthful twirler, showed well against the veteran Cuddy Murphy of Dartmouth fame, who pitched for the Plants.

One wild inning in which the locals squeezed in four runs spelled disaster for the college nine.

The score:

Plant Bros. ...0 0 0 4 1 0 0 1 x—6
N. H. State....2 0 0 0 0 0 1 0 0—3

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean.

"WELL, without his trombone he'd be without an incentive—when he's inventing some of his wonderful lotions he always plays first," continued Anna.

"By the way," remarked the new manager, "I appreciate my new job, but the doctor forgot to say anything about salary."

"He's very sensitive, Phil, you mustn't mind that—he often forgets to pay the girls until they remind him—all geniuses are like that."

"You think I ought to speak to him?"

"Oh, no, I wouldn't bother him. Just take whatever you think you ought to have—that is, of course, if there's anything to take."

And Anna Pleads

"You mean help myself to a few charge accounts—I don't know about this position after all"——

"Oh, you're not going to quit before you've begun," pleaded the artful Anna. "I'm looking to you to pull Guardy out of the hole—I don't know anyone else who could do it."

Such an appeal coming from such an alluring source was not to be resisted; the young man was so flattered at this faith in his abilities that he forgot for the moment the question of salary and thought only of the wonderful color of Anna's eyes and the roses in her cheeks, especially prepared by that greatest of all beautifiers, Madame Nature.

"I'll my best," he promised as the doctor stalked into the room in time to welcome a stout lady who carried a box of chocolates which she laid on the table as she addressed the specialist.

"I can't understand, doctor, why I continue to remain so un-sylph-like. I have had a great many treatments here, and I do not seem to reduce."

Her small eyes wondered in the direction of Anna to whom she pointed as a sample of what she would like to become. "Now, that young lady, if you'll excuse my saying so, is my idea of a perfect figure."

"Quite so," said the doctor, "she lives here—Miss Anna Budd, my ward—permit me"—and he introduced them.

"Ah, if you'd take such pains with your customers as you do with her," remarked the caustic woman——

"You forget, Madame my ward lives with me and as most of my clients never pay cash—her diet is limited to the simplest things—I have a suspicion you have candy in that box—"

"Oh, no, doctor," sighed the client, relieved to get away from the subject of money, "it's only a box of chocolates."

To the Point

"Strictly forbidden," said the doctor, "allow me," and before she could protest he had opened the box and sampled one of the confections.

"Very bad, Madame—very bad," he announced taking another and then handing the box to Anna, "I couldn't think of allowing you to add to your weight in such an insidious manner."

"You are so humorous, Doctor," replied the lady uncertain whether to fly into a rage or to smile.

"I have to be, I have so many charge customers—ah, here is the assiduous Pauline"—and with a bow that would have done credit to Chesterfield he turned the stout dowager over to one of his smiling assistants.

Mr. Philip Briggs found the problems of the beauty shop more diversified than a six-ringed circus. Dr. Budd's ingenuity in the concoction of cosmetics was excelled only by his utter disregard of income. He lamented but he did not collect. And such was the force of habit among his debtors that Mr. Briggs found it next to impossible to gather in a cent. But the creditors—that was another story—they clamored loud and long and Phil Briggs invented more excuses in six weeks than his eminent employer had invented lotions in as many years.

And Anna Expounds

All this while he was basking in the sunshine of Anna's smiles. And Anna had reached the conclusion that he was the only man in the world for her.

With all the ingenuousness of youth she broached the subject to the doctor: "Guardy, I'm in love."

The doctor arranged his tie, brushed back his forelock and smiled, "I knew you'd be glad," she went on.

"My dear, glad is a mild word. I'm the happiest man in the universe. Come, my love, and let me salute you."

The joyous Anna submitted to a caress the warmth of which surprised her even in her ecstatic state of mind. "And now tell me all about it. I feel like seventeen myself."

KNICKERS FOR GIRLS

—By Rita Stuyvesant—

THE time has come at last when women are wearing knickers and jackets not only for sport, but for town and country as well. And the models are so practical that no one can object. Whether you wear it for hiking or golfing or general sports, the knicker suit has come to stay.

Tweed or homespun is the favored fabric. Some models show three pieces—skirt, knickers and jacket—while others prefer the knickers and cape effect.

Riding suits are among the knicker suits for women, and white broadcloth breeches are smart with jacket of black. Black and white checked material makes an attractive habit when worn with a black sailor hat and black patent leather boots.

Crash riding habits are cool and have the added advantage of being easily laundered. Striped neckties and soft silk sport shirt and soft hat of straw banded in black completes this habit for the young girl.

One clever suit for biking is cut from khaki and is a jacket completed by knickers. The jacket is of the Norfolk type with a belt and the pleats, running from the shoulders to the bottom. The knickers are reinforced and worn with woolen golf sox and low shoes.

There is something dashing about the swagger capes and knickers shown instead of the jacket. Blue homespun shot with gray and made into an attractive suit with a three-quarter circular cape finished with straps of the material that cross themselves on the breast. The knickers come well over the knee and are completed by woolen golf sox with plaid cuffs.

The flappers are intensely interested in the knicker sport suits, perhaps because they show off the boyish figure to advantage. The flappers are wearing their brothers sport blouses, with striped college ties, and they look very swank.

If your tongue is coated or if you have an offensive breath!

Two almost unfailing danger signals that show you are suffering from constipation! Unless you eliminate this dangerous condition you have ten chances out of one hundred to escape illness—for ninety per cent of all sickness has been traced directly to constipation!

You cannot afford to wreck your health through neglect of constipation or constipation symptoms! Fight constipation as you would fight fire! And, fight it with nature's greatest natural weapon—BRAN—Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled! Your physician will indorse the use of Kellogg's Bran for constipation!

Kellogg's Bran will keep you hale and hearty and free from diseases that come from intestinal poisoning. Because Bran cleanses the bowels as nothing else can, and cleanses them in a natural way that causes no irritation or discomfort! Children thrive when given Kellogg's Bran. It helps them to grow strong and robust.

Eat Kellogg's Bran regularly and you will relieve constipation naturally and surely. But—it is important to use it each day; at least two heaping tablespoonfuls; in chronic cases eat it with each meal!

Kellogg's Bran will sweeten an offensive breath and clear up a pimply complexion—both being largely traceable to constipation.

And you will appreciate the delight of eating KELLOGG'S Bran, cooked and krumbled. It is delicious as a cereal or sprinkled on other cereals and it can be used in countless appetizing ways in baking and cooking! Grocers sell Kellogg's Bran.

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

"SO wounding is her face that though it frowns on me one evening, yet there I am the next on my knees—not really on them, you know, for young chaps nowadays don't get on their knees, some of us flapper-chaps go so far as even to crow, 'the days of slavery are over!'—but on my knees in spirit, donchaknow. For there is some little thing in her face that, though she is saying 'no' and her eyes are cold, still says 'yes' and is warm and soft. I suspect her. I believe my love to be two-faced.

"But Spring is here, with lambs—I don't see any, but I can find 'em—with forget-me-nots, with downy clouds, with young grass, with rosy, periwinkle-colored garments blowing as she walks, with young love and nesting in the air, and I have a roadster, a faithful, old, overhauled, fast roadster, and I will take her out on a long, swooping road in the Springtime country and I will bring her back under a Spring moon that rides high and bright and white-hot through flocks and bevies of baby clouds like pulled cotton, and if I do not see her real face then, then I am no man, and my brother can have my watch and my best striped tie that he has wanted for a long time, and I know where the water runs swift under a stone bridge and I hope the world will regret me when I am gone."

YOUR BOY'S SATURDAY

WHAT USE DOES HE MAKE OF IT?

By W. A. McKeever.

SIX high school boys in a flivver at sunrise, spinning for a cornfield ten miles out.

A big hot dinner at noon of fried chicken and pumpkin pie with a bigger appetite to do it justice.

Four big loads of golden ears of corn dumped into the crib by six in the evening.

The happy six spinning back to the city with some bruises and blisters aplenty, but full of a sense of self-respect and manliness, not to mention some extra cash in their pockets.

Now, compare the foregoing with a Saturday of loafing around the streets, pool rooms and the hidden card-flipping joints. The week-end shiftlessness and lack of duty and responsibility which too often characterizes our high school youth is inconsistent with the ideal program laid out for them during the five school days. And, what is worse, it tends to counteract the regime of the classroom.

Make your own inquiry, as I have done, if you will, and find that the typical high school youth tends to look upon his class work as a sort of affliction meted out to him by his parents and teachers—a kind of artificialism—while the real things of life are to be sought somewhere in the midst of the week-end dissipations.

It is a matter of serious moment to our great country that tens of thousands of our most promising youths should be taking a regular Saturday-to-Monday course of sowing wild oats. The fault is based partly upon the false belief that a boy can be educated exclusively in his classroom, that his training will somehow eventually land him "on top" and make it possible for him to "hold his own in the game of life."

It matters very little what the Saturday employment may be, provided it combine honesty and muscle training. Solid employment here will do more to fix his mind upon an honest purpose for life and to warm his heart with a sympathetic touch for common humanity than the five preceding days of schoolbook recitation.

Best Recipes

Heavenly Pie

Bake a pastry shell. Mash two ripe bananas thoroughly and add scant cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt, and 2 unbeaten egg whites. Beat till stiff, add 1-8 teaspoon almond extract. Fill shell with this mixture. Bake 25 minutes or so. Remove from oven and chill. Cover top with: Whip ½ pint cream flavored with ⅛ teaspoon vanilla. Now dot with cubes of currant jelly and sprinkle with ¼ cup chopped nuts.

Tamale Loaf

One and one-half pounds beef, 3 cups stock, 2 cups strained tomatoes, 1 large onion, 1 teaspoon Chili powder, 3 teaspoons salt, 1¼ cups cornmeal. Cook meat until tender, then put through a grinder, then add stock—onions chopped fine, tomatoes, Chili powder, salt—and bring to a boil; then add cornmeal, stirring constantly. Cook for an hour. Be careful not to scorch. Put in mold and set away to cool. Reheat in steamer and serve with tomato catchup.

Advice to Lovelorn

—By Beatrice Fairfax—

A Note of Sympathy

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I met a man at a party and have gone out with him twice. During one of the parties he introduced me to his parents and his sister.

Recently I heard he was ill. I would like very much to see him, but my parents object, saying that it is not proper for me to see him unless I am engaged or have gone out with him for some time.

PUZZLED.

WRITE a little note of sympathy, but don't force yourself where you may be an intruder.

Afraid of Gossip

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going about with a girl for a year when we broke off because she treated me meanly; I have now resumed friendship.

Will you tell me if it is best to go with her again if I care for her and she cares for me as I know my friends will talk about me and criticize me?

"A NEW YORKER."

HOW can anything your friends say matter as compared with your feelings for the girl? If she means anything to you, be man enough to ignore gossip and criticism and to live your own life honestly and according to your ideas of right and wrong.

Daily Short Story

WINNING A HUSBAND

By Bee McDonald.

ANGELA MORTON was superstitious—not unpleasantly so—just enough to add to her charm and make her more interesting.

When Rockcliffe Fenton arrived in Monmouth to practice law, he fell in love with Angela and she with him.

But he ran up against the rock of her superstitions and resolved to break it down.

"Leave it to me, Rock," Angela's older sister Helen told him, when he confided his troubles to her.

Helen was engaged to be married and the day for the wedding was set. Angela went about in a trance, it was all so wonderful.

In the meantime Rockcliffe had been very busy. One Sunday afternoon when he and Angela were riding in his roadster he took her to see a beautiful little bungalow on the edge of the town and asked her to marry him.

Answer Later

"Well"—she hesitated—"I'll give you my answer after Helen's wedding," and with that he had to be content.

Helen's wedding was a success from start to finish. The wedding gown was a dream and Helen was a beautiful bride. When she threw her bouquet from the landing of the stairway, Angela caught it, and when the bride's cake was cut Angela drew the section containing the ring. What could all this mean? Could it be possible these were signs sent to her as an offset to Friday, the 13th, the day she had met Fenton?

"Little sister," said Helen lovingly, "don't keep Rock waiting. He loves you dearly and I want to see you happy, too.

"If I was only sure he was the right one, I'd"—

"I'll tell you how we'll know," said Helen enthusiastically, taking the situation into her own hands. "I know an old custom among English girls which is said to be infallible. I'll write the names of seven men on seven slips of paper and seal them in seven envelopes. Each night you must place them under your pillow with a bit of my wedding cake; each morning destroy one envelope without looking inside it. On the seventh day look at the seventh slip in the seventh envelope and there the name of the man you're to marry will be revealed. Will you do it?"

Helen Wrote Husband

"Oh, that's wonderful!" exclaimed Angela, scurrying about for envelopes and paper. "Of course I'll do it!"

A week or two later, in answer to Angela's letter telling of her great happiness, Helen wrote, among other things:

"Forgive me, sister dear, but your happiness, next to my own, is the most vital thing in my life and I'm glad I succeeded in helping you to attain it. I deliberately threw my bouquet straight at you, besides instructing the other girls not to try to catch it.

"I also purposely placed you directly in front of the section of the cake I had marked beforehand as containing the ring. Further than that, every slip in the seven envelopes you dreamed over those seven nights contained the same name—Rockcliffe Fenton—and I hope this will help to banish silly superstition from your life forever."

RICH GIRL, POOR GIRL

AN ABSORBING SERIAL OF LIFE IN CITY

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

IT came almost immediately.

"Why is she asleep as late as this?" the mother demanded.

Adelaide replied gently: "Miss Patricia is still in her room, Mrs. Hollingshead. She was out in that dreadful snowstorm — and got a little cold—so it seemed wiser for her to remain in her room today."

"She is ill!" the mother exclaimed.

Then Henry Hollingshead spoke again.

"She is not ill," he declared. "But when one has even a slight cold it is wiser for her to avoid going into draughty halls."

"Please let me go to her!" the mother begged. "Henry, if you walk one side of me and Addie the other I am sure I can get as far as Patty's room."

"The nurse would not allow it," the husband began.

"No, indeed! It would not be safe," Miss Johnson declared.

Adelaide laid her hand on the tremulous fingers.

"My dear," she pleaded, "you are so weak just now that, even if you were able to walk as far as that room, you might catch cold. And your daughter would be distressed if you were made ill by over-exertion. For her sake, you must take care of yourself."

"But how soon will she be able to come to me?" the mother questioned. "Is she really only a little sick—so that she can be up by tomorrow? If not, I shall insist on going to her."

"She will be able to come to you tomorrow," Adelaide said with a calmness that carried conviction.

"You will promise to tell me if she is any worse?" the mother urged.

"I will promise to tell you," Adelaide rejoined.

"And now—I want to speak to Dick," the mother said, sinking back upon her pillows.

Adelaide followed the husband into the hall.

"There is no help for it," she told him regretfully. "If her son is able to walk, he must come to her. She must have one of her children here, or we cannot keep her quiet."

The man's haggard face grew more haggard. But he nodded his assent.

"I will bring the boy to his mother," he muttered.

Adelaide Brown returned to the sickroom. "Your son will be here in a few minutes," she told the mother. "Mr. Hollingshead has gone to call him."

She shut the door carefully, that the odor of flowers should not reach the patent.

To Adelaide it seemed that the whole house held an atmosphere of death. This was in her mind as she heard father and son coming slowly down the hall. She moved a chair rather noisily across the floor that the sick woman might not notice how slow and halting the men's steps were.

But when Richard entered the room he let go of his father's arm and came straight to his mother.

"Well, mater!" he said cheerily, "how are things with you now?"

"Oh, son, I am so glad to hear your voice," the invalid exclaimed. "Kiss me, dear."

She put her arms about the young man's neck as he bent over her. The side of Richard's head on which was a strip of adhesive was toward her face. Quickly Adelaide slipped her fingers over the plaster that it might not touch the woman's cheek. Richard noted the action, and, with a glance at her, turned his head so that the left temple, instead of the right, was next to his mother.

"You're a peach, all right!" he muttered.

He meant the words to reach Adelaide only, but his mother heard them.

WHY WOMEN GET DESPONDENT

Are not women naturally as light-hearted, brave and hopeful as men? Yes, certainly; but a woman's organism is essentially different from a man's—more delicate, more sensitive and more exacting. Women in delicate health are more dependent, more nervous, more irritable and more despondent. When a woman developes nervousness, sleeplessness, backaches, headaches, draggingdown pains and melancholia she should lose no time in giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial, as it will quickly dispel such troubles. This root and herb medicine contains no drugs and has been the standby of American womanhood for nearly fifty years.

BICYCLE RUN IS ONLY TWO DAYS OFF

Are you ready, cyclists?

Have you made final arrangements to participate in the big social bicycle run Sunday afternoon under the auspices of the Boston American?

If not, you are going to miss the biggest event of its kind ever staged in the United States. Every indication points to the biggest bicycle parade in the history of cycling.

Hundreds of persons have entered from all parts of New England and old-time riders are of the opinion that the largest number of cyclists ever gathered together in this country will take part in the outing.

STARTS AT 3 P. M.

The procession will start from Copley square at 3 p. m. and is expected to reach Franklin Field, the destination, about forty minutes later. The pace will be slow from beginning to end so that children and older riders may keep up without fatigue.

RACING BARRED.

Rules of the road will prevail. No racing will be permitted. Persons attempting to "scorch" will be ordered from the procession by motor cycle officers accompanying the riders. Participants should bear in mind at all times that this is to be a social ride to promote health and pleasure.

At the conclusion of the run 47 prizes valued at hundreds of dollars will be awarded, most of them for perfection in riding. Mayor Curley will present the prizes to the winners.

PRIZES DISPLAYED.

While the contests are under way a concert will be given by St. Augustine's Fife, Drum and Bugle Corps of South Boston. There are 75 boys of the organization.

Hundreds of persons have viewed the display of prizes in the window of Charles M. Stieff Piano Company, No. 146 Boylston street.

A large delegation of Framingham bicyclists will ride from that town to the starting point, twenty miles away, and then take part in the run. They will be under the leadership of Ernest C. Morse of Fay Court, Somerville, who participated in the two previous runs of the Boston American.

Fine Work of 'L' Trustees

We Are Glad Mayor Curley Has Praised Public Management of the Railway

We are glad to observe that Mayor Curley has come out in praise of the public management of the Boston street railway system by its public trustees.

These able and good men have been abused without rhyme or reason for the last three years. Men who never would have dared to have criticized the old private managers in the face of their well-known capacity to strike back have taken a keen delight in the very safe occupation of smashing at their public officials who cannot and will not hit back.

These trustees with Mr. Dana, their chief operating manager, are doing a fine piece of work for the people of the metropolitan district.

We have long believed that the persistent criticism of the public trustees has behind it some group of promoters anxious to take the street railway out of the hands of the public and operate it once more as a private enterprise for private profit.

Street railway property is coming back everywhere. The use of one-man cars and of trains and the other devices which necessity enabled those engaged in the art of street railway transportation to develop is reducing the cost of operation, thus somewhat offsetting the reduced value of the nickel.

The public took this road when it was so run down at the heel that its operation was very expensive. The public has poured money into the road to rebuild it and has given to its management an able board of trustees and an able manager. These public officials with the public money have been rebuilding the road every day so that it is becoming more economical to manage.

In other words, the public took a farrow cow and is making a new milch cow of it. Therefore the road has reached just the point when your ordinary promoter with banker-backing likes to step in and grab a property.

Our street railway cannot be taken without public approval. The way to get public approval obviously is to attack the public management of the road—deceive the public concerning it. The method is as old as fable. It is as old as the story of the wolf, the flock of sheep and the faithful dog, when our ancestors wore skins for clothes and carried clubs for weapons. Those attacking the public trustees are doing just what the wolf did to the dog, whom he could not induce by private arrangement to let him attack the sheep. He proceeded to attack the dog's conduct to the sheep and induced the sheep to dismiss the dog, with obvious results to the sheep. The general public is very much like a flock of sheep and the same methods are often practiced upon it.

Welcome, Marshal Joffre

Hero of the Marne Loved for Himself as Well as for His Military Genius

Boston is delighted to receive Marshal Joffre. He was the commander of the French army in the only battle of the war on the western front where old-fashioned military genius displayed itself. The Marne was the decisive battle of the World War, and will go down in history as one of the twelve decisive battles of the world. Had the battle of Marne been lost, the cause of the allies would have been lost, and Germany, for weal or woe, would have been the dominant nation in Europe.

But we do not like Joffre because he won the battle of Marne. We like him because he is Joffre. We like him because he is the kind of man whom his soldiers love and think of as "Grandpa" Joffre.

It was not given to Joffre to command the armies of the allies when they struck the last blow. But he commanded those armies during the great period which contained all the romance of the war before the digging in.

Marshal Joffre has been a faithful, obedient, self-effacing patriot of France, whom all must love and admire as his soldiers love and admire him, for his simplicity, his goodness and his greatness.

Bolshevism in America

Don't Worry, Dear Friends

Copyright, 1922, Star Company

The National Civic Federation warns the world that Lenin is trying to Bolshevize the United States. Proof, says the federation, is to be seen in W. Z. Foster, leader in the steel strike.

Here are a few facts that may comfort the Civic Federation: There are in this country out of a hundred and ten millions of human beings at least one hundred and two millions that despise and loathe any suggestion of radicalism or changing government, without even stopping to ask what it is about or how it would work.

There are a few more millions that associate the word "Bolshevism" with "rattlesnake." In addition, Lenin, through his representatives, is busy just now at Genoa trying to get back to more or less of a "capitalistic" basis, and away from the theory that the head has been guiding the body long enough and that it is about time to give the feet a chance. Bolshevism in this country has as much chance as vegetarianism in the lion's cage.

Neglect of Our War Relics

Condition of Gun and Tank on Common Symbolizes Indifference of Government Toward Veterans' Claims

As neglected as the heroes who captured them are the trophies of our triumphs overseas—the gun and tank on Boston Common. They stand there symbolizing the indifference of our national government to the just claims of the World War veterans. The tank in particular is in disgraceful condition, repelling the hundreds of visitors who come daily to view its historic site.

Now our city government has happily appropriated some $2,000,000 for the relief of distress due to unemployment and other causes. More than $1,000,000 of this sum goes to the Soldiers' Relief Committee.

It would be fitting and proper if the small amount necessary to mount both gun and tank on permanent bases and to provide protection for both from the ravages of marauders was set aside from the fund and the work given to needy ex-service men.

Why Not Every Day?

IF born today your mind is one that is just as dogmatic as it is usually right, and even if it is wrong, you won't readily admit it, so far as you are concerned the universe proceeds from your own conception of it as a place wherein to have your own unchallenged way.

You are rather romantic in your tastes, and in your day dreams you attribute to yourself all the charming grace and chivalry which you lack in everyday life.

Today is one of good omen for all proposals, business as well as marriage. Whatever the answer is, it will be your inevitable fate.

Avoid financial speculation during the next year of your life. Your domestic life will be unusually happy.

A child born today will be impetuous and ungovernable.

THE PEOPLE GET WHAT THEY REALLY WANT

By Dr. Charles Fleischer

Copyright, 1922, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

THE petulant song, "I Want What I Want When I Want It" might be amended—as far as concerns all of us as a people—to say: We Get What We Want When We Really Want It.

If you have ever talked with a newspaper publisher and criticised adversely what he published, he will tell you blandly that he gives the people what they want.

Conversation with theatrical managers and producers promptly brings the information that they give the people what they will patronize; as even theatrical folks are not in business for their health.

Periodically, the country is in the throes of agitation over proposed extensions of motion picture censorship. In this far-reaching enterprise of entertainment and incidental edification we are told that the normal appetite of the masses is being fed.

May Hold True

Now, it may hold true as a broad generalization that conditions, in every department of human interest and relationship, are about as the average man really want them. But what of that?

The people do not always know what they want. And if they do know, they may not have the means of expressing it.

Here you have the reason for the so-called dictatorship of the proletariat in Russia. Lenine and Trotzky say, with cynical frankness, that the people need to be instructed in what they should want and get. Therefore, you the spectacle of 600,000 Communists autocratically ruling 150,000,000 Russians.

They call it democracy. Which at least sounds more inclusive than dictatorship of the proletariat.

It is equally true in Russia and in America that we get what we want when we really want it—and when we KNOW how to demand what we actually want.

Strong Use the Weak

They rule who can rule. The strong always use the weak, whether with their consent or without it; sometimes for the good of the weaker, but usually for the increasing advantage of the stronger.

No use in wasting words of cynical protest on that score. There is only one effective way of changing that situation. No, not by piecemeal legislation, nor by wholesale change of systems, but by the developments of the calibre of the individual.

That is the way of democracy. It is slow, but sure. As intelligence grows, and self-respect deepens and self-assertion increases, and the sense of individual responsibility and of co-operative power becomes general, the people will not only know what they want, but they will know how to get it.

Then the might of the people becomes irresistible, by sheer force of bloodless evolution!

EX LIBRIS

By Zoe B. Faber

"WHY should we ever read fairy stories, when the truth of history is so much more interesting and entertaining?" asks Hendrik Van Loon at one point in his "The Story of Mankind" (Boni and Liveright). Why, indeed? The answer is neither far nor hard to find.

Because all the people who have compiled the textbooks for generations had neither the gift of story-telling nor the understanding to see that history served up to children in the dry-as-dust form that is traditional, automatically kills a child's natural curiosity and interest in the doings of his forebears.

Hendrik Van Loon has written a story, but it is a story that might well be a textbook for a child's fundamental knowledge of the world's conquests, art, religion and politics. Equally true, it is not a book that will only be enjoyed by children. It is just as fascinating to the mind of the older and wiser ones and as such, will eventually find a resting-place in many American homes.

"Real-live" men and women, as children call them, move through the narrative and their acts and thoughts are just as clearly depicted in an appealing way as if they had lived yesterday instead of thousands of years ago.

The gift of Van Loon is not alone in story-telling. He has profusely illustrated his book with the most vivid pen pictures which are scarcely pictures, but serve to make clear the idea better than many more elaborate drawings might have. Besides, they are the sort of things that a child draws and he understands and loves that kind of illustration.

The book is one you will want to own.

Ain't It the Truth?

By NICK FLATLEY

THE savage chief of Africa
Is a cannibal and all that;
He wears a thin kimona
And has flowers in his hat.
He boils a wife each day for tea
And gurgles at her misery;
And every time he slays a slave
He chortles merrily.

He pets his gang with carving knife
And thanks them with a spear;
And when one dies in agony,
The chief emits a cheer.
The subject who bewails his lot
Is bastinadoed on the spot,
And life around this dusky bird
Is mighty fast and hot.

If he should come to our fair shores
And read the daily press:
To wit, "One Hundred People Killed
When Freight Train Hits Express";
Or "Husband Poisons Faithless Wife,"
And "Reckless Driver Loses Life,"
He'd long for home and murder
With its gentle tribal strife.

To see that "Irate Gunman
Shoots Down a Helpless Cop";
That "Scores Pass Out on Week-End
From Drinking Home Made Hop,"
While "Actress Is by Rival Slain"
And "Hunger Victim Goes Insane,"
Would make him howl with horror
And go right back home again.

To the Editor

Boston American Thanked

Editor Boston American:

In behalf of the Massachusetts Tuberculosis League I wish to thank the Boston American for its interest and co-operation, as exhibited by its reports of the recent conference on tuberculosis in Huntington Hall. This is more to be appreciated since we are fully aware of the demand on your columns for space.

In its enormous circulation the Boston American reaches many families whose condition would be bettered by a more thorough knowledge of the story of tuberculosis and the methods of treatment and prevention. This, we feel, is of high educational value.

SEEN AND HEARD

By Lambert and Daily

ELMER L. BRIGGS of Plymouth, who served on the Anti-Fish Trust Committee which first brought ATTORNEY-GENERAL ALLEN into prominence, has announced his candidacy for the Senate. SENATOR JOHN W. CHURCHILL, who has beaten Briggs twice, will retire this year because of ill health.

GOVERNOR COX will observe Arbor Day tomorrow, by planting a tree on the west-wing State House grounds. It will be a cut-leaf maple.

The silent guardians of City Hall—JOSIAH QUINCY and BENJAMIN FRANKLIN. Quincy was the second mayor of Boston, serving from 1823-28. Both have witnessed the changing city governments for many a year—would they could talk.

Off to Southern Lands—CITY "CENSOR" JOHN M. CASEY will represent Boston at the convention of the Better Film Committee of the Southern States at Atlanta, Georgia—bet that nothing will escape the eagle eye of "John"—nothing ever does in Boston.

Keeping busy even while on a sick bed—is STANDISH WILLCOX—he writes "if there is anything that I can do personally for anyone, do not fail to send them to the hospital."

MYSTERY—What became of SECRETARY MICHAEL WARD the afternoon following the dinner tendered to him, at which he received a solid gold watch and chain—Who was the man who is said to have eaten so much that he could not respond when called upon for a speech—Who were the two gentlemen who entered into a wordy argument at a perfectly good party?—"Jim" HALLIGAN is investigating.

LUKE SHIELDS, directing secretary of the City Employment Bureau, says that he is tired of riding around in the health department's contagious disease car, so he has taken unto himself an automobile. By the way—Luke has just been appointed a special agent of the United States Department of Labor, with free postage franking—the saving to the city in postage will amount to many dollars.

The little patch of Emerald green in front of City Hall has been seeded down and soon one may expect to see a beautiful lawn in the heart of the city.

When in doubt, ask RUPERT S. CARVEN, city auditor—the man of figures—said to be one of five Bostonians who really know city finances. RUPERT, however, better known as the "daddy of the budget."

REPRESENTATIVE HUGH CAMPBELL of Boston says the liability insurance companies could well afford to increase their payments to injured workmen. He says in 1920 they collected $140,000,000 in premiums, out of which they paid $2,000,000 for their expenses, $50,000,000 in profits and but $56,000,000 to the men and women injured in industry.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON STAR GUIDE POSTS

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE astronomer who is not altogether lost in superterrene things has a wonderful sight of the earth whenever he chooses to look at it—an effective reflection of the round world, or half of it, in the star-dome above.

This is perhaps the thing that brings the stars closest to humanity, for they are like lights in far-off windows to show us where lie the homes of our friends. Or, rather, they are loftily placed guide-posts, which indicate at a single view the location of every point on an entire hemisphere.

I cannot see New York, Paris, Honolulu and Buenos Aires at the same time, but I can simultaneously see their zeniths, together with those of a thousand other places, in the broad concave mirror of the enveloping sky.

When once one recognizes this fact, what a vivid interest the starry vault acquires! You look at the pole star in the north, and there rises in your mind a picture of the snowy hummocks on which its perpendicular rays fall, splintering into ice-cold sparkles. You glance at Orion's three-starred belt and straightaway the glowing equator is before your eyes, for always the upper star of that beautiful trio rounds the circle of the equator as the trolley-wheel follows the cable.

How Stars Fix Places

When the "Northern Cross" is in the zenith at New York, I look at the Pleiades, apparently just above my eastern horizon, but really dropping their starry glimmer almost vertically upon the sacred Kaaba and the well Zemzen at Mecca in Arabia! Then, am I not in Mecca? Yet in an instant, by simply glancing far over into the northwestern heavens, where the stars of Draco, the great Hyperborean serpent, twist their coils about the pole, I may find myself standing on the cold white head of Mt. McKinley in Alaska!

Now, let us take a look at the concave picture of the side of the earth on which we dwell as the stars pin it up at some chosen day and hour. Let the date be April 6th (it may be a few days earlier or later without serious effect) and let the hour be 9 p. m. local time at New York. By the system of time meridians the reader who lives anywhere near the same latitude as that of New York may adjust the hour to his own longitude. The locations that we give will be only approximate.

We find the great Spring star Regulus in Leo on the meridian, and one of the double-starred paws of the Great Bear is close to the zenith. Now at that moment the body of the Bear is suspended over Canada, while the handle of the "Great Dipper," forming the Bear's tail, stretches out across the Atlantic just south of Greenland. A shot from your eye to the Bear's eye, falling vertically from its mark would strike the earth at the northwestern corner of Hudson Bay.

Castor and Pollux

At the same time, high in the western sky, "the Twins," Castor and Pollux, are seen in brotherly embrace above the Gulf of California, while, lower, Taurus, the celestial "Bull," with the red Aldebaran glaring on his forehead, and the Pleiades hanging like a swarm of silver bees on his flank, is charging nearly across the zenith of Hawaii, and you may imagine that you catch the glitter of the Pacific breakers in the sheen of the Pleiades and Hyades.

Higher is the giant Betelgeuse in Orion's shoulder, with its perpendicular rays descending upon the open Pacific some 2,500 miles southwest of the coast of California, while the white gleam of Rigel on Orion's uplifted foot almost marks the zenith of the Marquesas Islands, radiant in the tropical night south of the equator.

Farther east and north the beautiful "Northern Crown" hangs over northern Africa, just south of Tripoli and Tunis, while low in the northeast, rising with a steely blue glitter, is Vega in the Lyre.

BIDDING IN AUCTION BRIDGE

By S. S. Carvalho

ARTICLE XVI.
Trump Suit Declaration.

IN a Trump suit declaration the decision whether or not to assist, is affected by the number and character of the Trumps. The partner has already been credited by the Declarer with an average Trump holding, that is, three small Trumps or two Trumps, one of which is an honor. If he has not these Trump values, even if he has side suit strength, it is always a question whether he should not shift the suit or pass.

If he has no Trumps at all, or only one, even with other strength, he should certainly do so, as the probabilities are that the adversaries are the longer in Trumps. So if he names his own suit or goes No Trump, the combined hands may do better than raising the Declarer. Besides, if the Declarer's Trumps are long enough he can bid them in again on the second round.

On the other hand, if he has four or five small Trumps without ruffing possibilities, and little or no side strength, he should not be led into raising on them, for in most instances they will fall to the Declarer's higher Trumps.

For example, take a hand where partner's Trump suit strength is average, that is, 3 small or an honor and one small. These Trump are worth exactly one-half a trick, so the partner must have in addition an Ace and a side guarded King, which are counted one and one-half tricks, or three guarded Kings, which at one-half a trick each also count up one and one-half tricks.

However, here are only the two tricks that the Declarer has already reckoned on. To raise the bid one the partner must have in addition the value of one trick more. If he has a Blank suit or a Singleton with his three Trumps he may count on an additional one or two tricks. A Singleton Ace would mean two tricks.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.
